U. S. IN SECRET JAP WAR MOVES

KING GEORGE and Queen Mary riding in their public carriage, on which suffragettes made attack at Liverpool today.

Militants Attack King and Queen

LONDON, July 11.—An evident attempt at assassination occurred in the House of Commons today when a man in the strangers' gallery for spectators drew a revolver and fired, shortly after today's session of the House opened.

A Parliamentary policeman, who was nearby, grasped the man and wrenched the pistol from his hand before he could fire again.

After quiet had been restored a quantity of suffrage literature was picked up on the floor of the chamber which convinced the police that the man was a suffragist.

Spectators sitting near him declared that the shooter had yelled "Justice for women" and similar sentiments, but the noise and confusion was so great that he could not be heard by the members.

One report which subsequently was circulated was that the man had attempted to assassinate Premier Asquith because of his opposition to the female propaganda.

Another report was that the man had been hired by the militant suffragettes to make a demonstration and that the bullet was not intended for any one in particular.

The other spectators in the gallery were thrown into panic by the shooting and a mad scramble for the exits ensued. Many were knocked down and trampled.

On the floor of the house there was high excitement. So great was the uproar that all business was suspended.

LIVERPOOL, Eng., July 11.—Many persons were hurt here today in the street fighting between men and women which followed an attempt by the militant suffragettes to attack the carriage in which King George and Queen Mary were driving through the city.

The attack followed a wild scene in Lord street when Miss Jolly, secretary of the Liverpool branch of the Woman's Social and Political Union, made a lone raid, smashing hundreds of dollars' worth of plate glass windows.

The local militant leaders had laid plans for the biggest suffrage demonstration Liverpool had ever seen because of the presence here today of the King and Queen, who are making a tour of England.

Scatters the Crowd.

Extraordinary police precautions had been taken to guard the King and Queen from attack, as it was feared that the militants, who have been unusually active here of late, would attempt to interfere with the progress of the royal party and perhaps commit actual assault.

Just before the royal party turned into Lord street Miss Jolly appeared. Dashing into the crowd of spectators and brandishing a poker above her head, she scattered them right and left. Screaming denunciations of the government, she sent her weapon crashing into the plate glass windows. Several policemen overpowered her, and she was locked up.

Half an hour later, the attack upon the royal carriage occurred. From a break in the police lines several women ran into the street. They hurled a quantity of suffrage literature into the carriage and one of them seized the door and tried to wrench it open. Another ran toward the horses' heads to stop them.

Women in Fight.

An enquiry leaped to the street, grappled with one of the women and in an instant the others were seized by police men. In the meantime, however, supporters of the militants had swarmed to the aid of their sisters and immediately a free-for-all fight was begun. Women attacked men and men retaliated by attacking women. Fists and clubs and hat pins were the chief weapons. Many were knocked down and trampled. The police made a number of arrests.

Meeting at Revere to End Tax Tangle

Warrants Out Despite Selectmen's Refusal to Issue Call.

Warrants were posted in Revere today calling a special town meeting July 21, to take action on the tangle in the assessors' office, as a result of which Samuel A. Segee is under sentence for falsifying public records.

The warrant was issued by Justice of the Peace Robert Pirie and posted after the selectmen had refused to call a town meeting before September 8.

The warrant contains these three articles: To elect a moderator, to deal with the tax tangle and to abolish the Committee on Claims.

CREDITOR ACCUSES BIGELOW

Copper Magnate Petitioned into Involuntary Bankruptcy by New York House.

DEBT OF $70,000 CLAIMED

Albert S. Bigelow of Cohasset, the copper magnate, was today petitioned into involuntary bankruptcy by the Columbia and Knickerbocker Trust Company of New York. The petition has not yet been granted. Hearings will be assigned shortly.

The New York trust company charges that Bigelow borrowed $70,000 of it April 11, 1907. It charges that March 18, 1910, Bigelow transferred all his property to the New England Trust Company of Boston to "hinder, delay or defraud his creditors," and that on the same date he made an assignment to the New England Trust Company for the benefit of his creditors, but no notice was given the Columbia and Knickerbocker Trust Company.

Bigelow has had a spectacular career in copper stocks. He is a prominent Boston clubman, at one time being president of the Gentlemen's Driving Club.

His most spectacular appearance was when he was sued for alleged secret profits in promoting the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company, and a verdict for $2,182,839 was returned against him. This followed sixteen years' litigation.

After his assignment of property to the New England Trust Company, creditors filed bills against him there. Cohasset asked $30,000 due for taxes on Bigelow's Cohasset estate.

U. S. A. Good Enough For Julia Marlowe

Foreswears England and Will Spend Summers in America.

Julia Marlowe loves the water—only she loves it in the ocean, not in the way of constant downpouring from the heavens.

During the past two years the actress has leased a country house in England. Last Summer during nine weeks there were but three days of sunshine. That settled the matter; no more England. So, Miss Marlowe and her husband, E. H. Sothern, have purchased a lovely, spacious home at West Hampton Beach, Long Island, where they are now spending their vacation.

The ocean is but 100 feet from the front piazza, and back of the house, hardly a quarter of a mile distant, is Moriche's Bay. Miss Marlowe says West Hampton Beach is away ahead of anything England has to offer.

Hubbard, Caruso and Carroll Write Opera

It Is to Be Strictly American; Savage the Producer.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Elbert Hubbard of East Aurora, Earl Carroll of Pittsburgh, at present identified with the Leo Feist Music Publishing Company, and Enrico Caruso of the Metropolitan Opera Company, are writing an American opera. There is every prospect that the public will have an opportunity to see and hear the work, as Henry W. Savage of New York, has made a contract to produce it as soon as it is ready.

Carroll is not only to furnish the lyrics for the opera, but also to supply the ideas of stagecraft. The plot of the proposed opera has not been disclosed, but it is to be essentially American.

Morgan's Widow Sails for Europe

Will Spend Summer in London and on Continent.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Mrs. Pierpont Morgan, widow of the great American financier, sailed for Europe yesterday aboard the White Star liner Baltic. She will remain abroad all Summer, visiting London, Paris and other Continental cities. Her son, J. P. Morgan, and her daughters, Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee and Mrs. William P. Hamilton, were at the pier to see her off.

Malden Man May Die of Drug Dose

James A. Douglas, fifty years old, of No. 9 Berkeley street, Malden, took tablets containing morphine and acetanilide today at his home, and was carried to the Malden Hospital where his condition was reported as dangerous. He was said to be despondent since a recent operation for appendicitis. His wife died a year ago. He has three children.

ARMIES IN POSITION TO STRIKE BLOW

Mobilization of Naval and Military Forces in Pacific Possessions.

JAP FLEET AT FORMOSA

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Japan and the United States have been secretly preparing for war since June 1, at least. Astounding details of the covert naval and military activity of both nations—of the United States in the Philippines, of Japan in the Eastern Pacific—have come to light.

They reveal the two Powers massing their forces and watching each other warily on their colonial frontiers today.

The situation described below has been in existence for more than a month. A single act may precipitate an international conflict at any time. Here are the facts:

The Japanese fleet is mobilized near Formosa, an island possession of the Mikado in the Southeastern Pacific, less than two days' sail from Manila.

A Japanese gunboat has been ordered to Manila on a friendly visit. This is precisely the same kind of a mission on which the U. S. S. Maine sailed to Havana, Cuba, in 1898, a mission which ended in the blowing up of the battleship in the harbor of the Antilles capital and which was the prologue to the Spanish-American War.

PRESIDENT IN AUTO PERIL ON HANOVER ROAD

CORNISH, N. H., July 11.—President Wilson had a narrow escape from serious accident on the return trip from Hanover today when his machine skidded on the newly oiled road, and nearly crashed into a rail fence. Robinson, the White House chauffeur, threw on the emergency brakes and stopped the heavy machine just in time to prevent injury to the car or to the President, who was occupying the front seat.

The President's automobile attempted to turn aside to allow a heavy dray to pass a short distance of Hanover. The skid chains failed to catch in the new laid oil and the car swung around until it came within a foot of the fence by the side of the road. The President was thrown slightly to one side of the car, but managed to retain his seat, while the chauffeur righted the machine. The Secret Service men in the car hastened to the President's assistance, but were not needed except to help clean the oil from the running board.

Joe Wolcott Fined; Appeals; Is in Jail

Joe Wolcott, once middleweight champion of the fighting world, appeared before Judge Burke today charged with keeping a disorderly house at No. 2 Trumbull street. Testimony was offered to show that the house was frequented by boys of fifteen years who bought liquor. Joe was found guilty and fined $100. He appealed and was held in $500 for the Superior Court. He was sent to the Charles street jail.

Pope Continues in Very Good Health

ROME, July 11.—The Pope's physicians today dissuaded him from taking his usual drive and walk in the gardens of the Vatican, owing to the violence of the storm. The Pope continues perfectly well. The pontiff is deeply concerned about the situation in the Balkans. He expressed regret today that both Bulgaria and Roumania, the two most advanced of the Balkan nations, should engage in a fratricidal war.

Whitman Moving to Indict Lamar

NEW YORK, July 11.—District Attorney Whitman today began preparations to take criminal action against David Lamar, the Wall street manipulator, for impersonating Congressmen and others in his stock sales. At the same time the federal authorities are proceeding along the same line. When Mr. Whitman secures sufficient evidence he will ask the Grand Jury to indict Lamar as a fraud charge.

Blames St. John for Misuse of Funds

Trautman Explains His Position in Lawrence Strike-Relief.

William Trautman of Chicago, who during the Lawrence strike served on the committee in charge of strike relief funds, has forwarded to the Supreme Court of the State an affidavit setting forth reasons because of which he says neither he, Joseph Bedard, nor Joseph Shuheen should be personally responsible for the misuse of $10,649.43 of the funds. Attorney General Swift brought action on the relation of the Rev. Herbert S. Johnson and others.

Trautman says that under orders of Vincent St. John, general secretary-Treasurer of the Industrial Workers of the World, all books and papers relating to the fund were taken out of his charge. He says that much of the fund was afterwards diverted to other uses than those for which it had been solicited—all under orders of St. John. Trautman says he protested in writing against the misuse of the funds. He says his protests were ignored.

Orders Sale of Two Street Railways

Judge Hammond of the Supreme Court, has entered a decree authorizing Eugene H. Luther, receiver of the Medfield and Medway, and the Dedham and Franklin Street Railway Companies, to sell the franchises and properties of both companies at auction unless within five days the bonds and interest shall have been paid. The Old Colony Trust Company claims $126,448.66, and the Boston Trust Company is entitled to $114,322.92.

Portland, Ore., Bank Asks for Receiver

PORTLAND, Ore., July 11.—After an existence of about a year, the First Trust Company of this city has closed its doors and asked for appointment of a receiver. The situation is said to be due rather to legal technicalities than to a question of finances. Creditors will be paid in full, officials say.

Injured Man, Found Near Tracks, Dies

An unidentified man was found dying early today in the South Boston yards of the New Haven Railroad. The police thought he had been struck by a train. He was taken unconscious to City Hospital, where he died an hour later. He was about forty-two, five feet eight inches tall, weighed 150 pounds, was of dark complexion, dark mustache, grey eyes, wore a dark suit, dark mixed overcoat with belt and a blue shirt.

Big Inheritance Tax for New Hampshire

CONCORD, N. H., July 11.—The State treasurer has received a check for $10,660, in payment of the inheritance taxes, urged against the estate of Anna F. Fay, city of Boston.

AUTOIST IN COURT FOR DEATH

George M. Leghorn of No. 296 Newbury street, Back Bay, was arraigned today in the Winchester District Court on a charge of manslaughter for killing Florence Rossley, the four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Rossley of No. 114 Court street, Winchester, with his automobile yesterday afternoon.

The accident happened on the State Highway in front of the child's home. Death was instantaneous. The little girl's body was so badly mutilated that the undertaker did not permit the mother to see it. The State Highway Commission is making a rigid investigation.

The little Winchester girl was the first of two children killed yesterday. Little Helen Marchant, aged eight, of Newton, was killed by a train at Beverly.

The most pathetic feature of Helen's case was that she died in the hospital where her mother, Mrs. Henry Marchant, was ill. She doesn't know yet that her only child is dead. She is too ill for the doctors and nurses to tell her.

Mrs. Marchant lives at No. 88 Allison street, Newton. She had been stopping at Beverly and a week ago was taken ill and sent to the Beverly Hospital. Her condition had been so precarious that her husband has been constantly at her bedside. He was there when he got news of the accident which caused his daughter's death in a few hours.

This was the second automobile accident in the same day in which children were run down. Morris Silverman, eight, of No. 2048 Washington street, Boston, was knocked down by an automobile owned by a lunch firm yesterday afternoon. He is at the City Hospital with a bruised head, but will recover.

Florence Rossley was the third youngster in a family of five daughters, the oldest being seven. Mrs. Rossley is almost prostrated. She said today:

"My greatest care has been to keep my children off the highway. The high speed with which automobiles race past here is shameful. See those machines now! They go altogether too fast. There is no need of it. And see what grief an accident sends into a household.

Witnesses said that Leghorn made a desperate attempt to swerve his car, but the wheels struck the child and mangled her horribly.

Sue Lockwood, Auto Speeder, for $9,000

Four Injured in Accident Seek Damages of Ex-Harvard Athlete.

Four suits aggregating $9,000 were filed today in the Clerk of Courts' office at East Cambridge against Philip C. Lockwood, former prominent Harvard athlete, now manager of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company at Manchester, N. H., by Melvin M. Johnson, prominent Boston lawyer, his wife, and Mr. Alfred Douglass, former commodore of the Boston Yacht Club, and his wife.

On the night of May 10 Lockwood, with a party of four other men, while driving on the boulevard near Riverbank Court in a six-cylinder motor, crashed into the Johnson machine, causing both cars to turn turtle and resulting in all being thrown out.

Lockwood was arrested and fined $100 for reckless driving. He was also charged with driving a car while under the influence of liquor. The latter charge was dismissed.

Lockwood's license now stands suspended by the Board of Highway Commissioners.

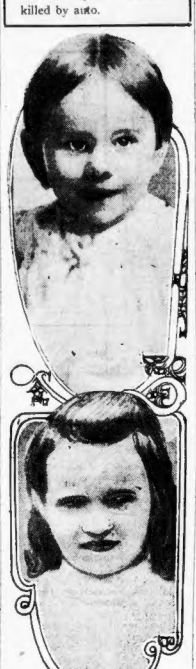
Asleep at Circus, Lost Hat and Watch

It's dangerous to fall asleep at a circus. Walter J. Costello of Malden told the police of that city today he went to a circus last night, fell asleep and when he woke up found he had been robbed of his Panama hat and his watch and chain.

Get 2 Loads of Beer in Beverly Raid

BEVERLY, July 11.—The police here today raided Targo's barber shop on a John Doe warrant and seized two wagon loads of beer and other liquors.

HELEN MARCHANT, at top, Beverly girl killed by train, and Florence Rossley of Winchester, killed by auto.



LONG ISLAND EXPRESS HITS AUTO; 3 KILLED

NEW YORK, July 11.—Thundering through Mineola today at high speed a Long Island express train smashed into an automobile, killing three persons and injuring five. It is claimed that no warning was given at the crossing that the train was coming.

The dead are: William Robertson, No. 380 East Nineteth street, New York, and two unidentified men.

The injured are: George Lash and Thomas Nolan of Jersey City, William Miller, James MacDougall and John Rogan, all of Glen Cove.

Storm and Cold Blast Sweep Italy

Wide Territory Flooded and Great Damage Done.

ROME, July 11.—A terrific storm is raging throughout Italy, and in many places the country has been devastated and the crops destroyed. It is accompanied by remarkably cold weather for the time of year, the temperature in Rome at noon today falling below 60 degrees Fahrenheit.

Extraordinary falls of rain and hail have flooded the country surrounding Naples for the past two days. Torrents of mud and ashes from Vesuvius have inundated the villages along the Gulf of Turin. The temperature fell today almost to freezing point.

A violent tempest in the vicinity of the Straits of Messina, accompanied by a heavy fall of rain, has caused enormous damage in Messina.

MAYOR SORRY TO SEE POLITICS IN "L" DISPUTE

Mayor Fitzgerald today issued the following statement:

I am not surprised at the statement of the carmen's union in regard to Mr. Vahey. He undoubtedly has their confidence at the present time as he had the confidence of others whose interests he afterwards betrayed. If my statement starts an inquiry which will turn the searchlight on him I think the whole community will thank me. At this time I simply desired to call the attention of all the carmen in Boston, as well as the public generally, to the hypocrisy of his position in regard to myself, and I think the public generally, and the majority of the carmen's union, if not now, will later understand the situation.

As for the carmen's statement that I should have declined to name the third arbitrator because I had made the statement that the stockholders' interests would have to be considered, this would have been a clear evasion of my public duty. A year ago I was named for this position and I could not honorably withdraw, particularly for such a flimsy excuse as Mr. Vahey gave, that I said the stockholders should be treated honorably. If I had done what the carmen's union said I should have done, and declined to act if called upon in an emergency such as a strike would create in the city, I would be unfit to serve as the Mayor of the city of Boston.

In conclusion, let me add that I would be sorry if the street car situation in Boston were to be made the football of politics.

Woman Attacks Another in Court

Aggressor Jailed After Lively Scrimmage Before Judge Wentworth.

Right out in open court today at the Pemberton Square Courthouse Mrs. Frances McDermott of No. 42 Dover street attacked Mrs. Mary E. DeMoin of Reedindale, beating the latter about the head and face with a folded newspaper. Mrs. McDermott had asked Judge Wentworth for a warrant against the victim of her wrath, charging she had been annoyed by Mrs. DeMoin. This the Judge refused. Sergeant Detective Irwin finally overpowered the "militant" after a struggle.

Judge Wentworth ordered Mrs. McDermott arrested. Later she was held in $100 in the municipal court and was sent to the Tombs in default. The case will come up for a hearing next Friday and it is expected Judge Wentworth will be a witness.

Open Hearings in Child Labor War

Special Legislative Committee Begins Investigation.

The special legislative committee to investigate the employment of women and children today formally began its work with a public hearing at room 227, State House. Chief Whitney of the State Police and several of his factory inspectors were questioned as to conditions and the scope and enforcement of existing laws.

Chief Whitney admitted there were not enough factory inspectors to properly look after conditions in all the factories of the State.

Miss Mary E. Hailey, an inspector of the district police, said that women and minors are employed in some factories at dangerous machinery, but that "there is no safeguard that can absolutely prevent a shuttle from flying off a cotton loom while in motion."

Chief Whitney said there were eighteen factory inspectors in his department who inspect textile factories. Some of these have been transferred by a recent act to the Building Inspection Department, but because of the need of more factory inspectors they have been continued as factory inspectors in connection with the building inspection work.

In answer to Representative William J. Sullivan, Miss Hailey said it was impossible for her to make more than two thorough inspections of a factory in any one year.

The committee will meet again Wednesday. Members of the State Board of Health and Representative Benjamin F. Sullivan, sponsor for the order for the investigation, will be heard.

Railroad Men Deny Wilson Call

NEW YORK, July 11.—A. B. Garretson, president of the Order of Railway Conductors, and W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Trainmen, denied today that representatives of the employes on the Eastern railroads have been invited by President Wilson to go to Washington for a conference on the wage dispute which threatens to cause a strike of 100,000 men. One thousand committeemen, representing all the roads involved, are here for a meeting tomorrow.

Albert Phillips, a member of the firemen's arbitration committee, declared that the railroads were not living up to their agreement.

Girl Travels 5,000 Miles to Marry

Miss Eranooki Perotsian, twenty-two, a Turkish girl, has arrived here after a 5,000-mile wedding journey, and is today completing plans for her marriage Sunday to M. H. Shoosban, forty, a wealthy Worcester merchant. The romance began two years ago when he met her in Constantinople.

"I would travel many times around the world," the girl declared, "just to be near him."

BULGARIA IS INVADED BY ROUMANIANS

VIENNA, July 11.—Roumanian troops began to cross the Bulgarian frontier at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon, according to late advices received here. Her army of 400,000 to 500,000 men is fresh and in fine shape, as it has not been involved in previous fighting.

This move, it is believed here, will bring the war to a close speedily. Bulgaria has appealed to the Powers to arrange peace.

King Charles has promulgated a declaration of war against the Bulgarians, but it has not yet been approved by the Roumanian Congress, which will assemble next Wednesday.

It is expected that Roumania's step first will be the occupation of the 25,000 square miles of territory which she claims from Bulgaria as compensation for her neutrality in the war with Turkey.

Trying to Rouse the Turks.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 11.—Bulgaria is trying to provoke Turkey to reopen the war against the Balkan "allies" in order to save herself from humiliating defeat by Servia and Greece, according to the belief in official circles here. Word was received here today that Bulgarian troops had set fire to Midia, an important port on the Black Sea. It was said that a number of Turks had been massacred.

Greeks Sweep Macedonia.

ATHENS, July 11.—All of Southern Macedonia is now in the hands of the Greeks. The important city of Demir Hissar was occupied today. The Greek army is sweeping all before it on its eastern march, and there is a possibility that it may penetrate as far as Adrianople.

Bulgarian Army Crushed.

BELGRADE, July 11.—The two southern wings of the Bulgarian army in northern Macedonia have been crushed by the Servians with tremendous loss of life. The Bulgarians are in retreat twenty miles south of Egrhsalents, where a stand was made.

Twenty-four powerful Krupp guns which the Bulgarians had captured from the Turks, were abandoned in the flight.

Merchants Paid Anderson $3,137

These additional statements of expenditures to legislative counsel and agents have been filed with the secretary of the Commonwealth: The Boylston Street Merchants' Association, to Eibridge R. Anderson, on account of the Avery street widening bill and the various bills relative to subways in Boston, $3,137.45. The Boston financial houses paid Ropes, Gray & Gorham, on the so-called "blue sky" bill, $1,000. The United Drug Company paid Gaston, Snow & Saltonstall, on all matters, $250. The Old Colony Club paid Frank W. Knowlton, on the bills relative to fishing in Buzzards Bay, $250. The Sightseeing Auto Company paid Harry N. Nayer, on the bills to regulate sightseeing automobiles, $350. The legislative bureau of the Progressive party paid Robert A. Dean, general counsel, $841.50; John G. Palfrey, for assistance in drafting bills, $962; and for printing, $105.75.

Plum Island Calls for a Steel Bridge

Summer Folk Marooned by Fire Also Demand Apparatus.

NEWBURYPORT, July 11.—The more than 1,000 Summer residents of Plum Island marooned by the fire which burned the old drawbridge between the island and Newbury will demand that a steel bridge be built to the island, and will also ask to have a chemical engine and hose wagon stationed there. Arthur Brown, a Boston business man, and Charles Wayland Towne of Cambridge, are among those signing the petitions.

All the street cars which traverse the island were on the mainland when the fire started. As a result, the island is without car service today and is likely to be so for several days.

Twenty auto parties are among the persons stranded on the island.

Prohibition Ticket Filed at Capitol

The nominating certificate of the candidates of the Prohibition party for State offices was filed with the Secretary of State today, bearing the names of the following candidates nominated at the convention held on July 4: Governor, Alfred H. Evans, Northampton; Lieutenant-Governor, Albert J. Green, Sharon; Secretary, John A. Nicholls, Beverly; Treasurer and Receiver General, Thomas A. Frissell, Hinsdale; Auditor, Herbert S. Brown, Greenfield; Attorney General, Freeman T. Cromwell, Chelsea.

City Help Cut Day's Pay in Somerville

The city laborers of Somerville are disappointed because they were not paid for the Fourth of July. The Mayor says it is due to the city being short of funds.

At the last meeting of the Board of Aldermen that body passed a resolution giving it as their opinion that the city laborers should be paid for State and national holidays.

The board has nothing to do with the regulating of the laborers' pay.

BENNETT HELD ON CHARGE OF MERCURY GIRL

Ernest G. Bennett, the Dorchester youth who is accused by Miss Susan McLaughlin, the nineteen-year-old Malden girl who took bichloride of mercury tablets, was today held for the Superior Court in $400 bonds by Judge Bruce after a hearing in the Malden District Court. Bennett is charged with a serious offence.

Bennett and his girl accuser are first cousins. While the girl was in the Malden City Hospital, it became known that Bennett was engaged to marry Miss Nellie Welch, a Dorchester girl. Miss McLaughlin says she wants Bennett to marry her.

Both Miss McLaughlin and Bennett took the stand today, the girl telling frankly of her relations with the Dorchester youth. The latter admitted he had visited the girl, but denied the charge against him.

Girl's Mother in Court.

With Miss McLaughlin was her mother, Mrs. Margaret McLaughlin.

After Bennett had pleaded not guilty, his accuser took the stand.

I have known Ernest all my life. When he first began calling on me I was living in Lynn. That was last January 25. I did not know him intimately until March 8. I was nineteen years old last Tuesday.

At one time I lived at Ernest's home for three weeks. I liked him very much. I had a great affection for him. I was anxious to have him marry me. In Lynn I roomed in the Judson house. There Ernest called on me. His visits were as often as once or twice a week, and he usually came between 7 and 8 at night.

Attorney Daniel O'Connell, former secretary to Mayor Fitzgerald and counsel for Bennett, cross-examined Miss McLaughlin. He asked her about her attempt to kill herself. She replied with a tremor in her voice:

Tells of Poison.

I got to thinking of Ernest. He had not called on me for some time. I kept thinking and thinking about him, and the tablets were in the corner of the cupboard at home.

I talked with Ernest at the hospital the Sunday after I took the tablets. I told him I had had a row with my brother and that I took the poison because of this row. The girl denied that she had ever had any other male callers than Bennett while she lived in Lynn.

Bennett said he had visited the girl once or twice a week, the last time in April, but denied talk of marriage.

Attorney O'Connell asked Judge Bruce to keep the testimony out of the newspapers. This was refused, Judge Bruce declaring the sessions of the court to be public at all times.

Grand Ball Closes Big Elk Reunion

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 11.—The grand ball at the New York State Armory tonight will smark the closing feature of the Grand Lodge reunion of the Elks. Delegations are leaving Rochester. Many of the visitors are going to Niagara Falls for the day. Others will visit Thousand Islands before returning home. The installation of the new officers was the final business.

Cohalan Denies Bribery Charges

ALBANY, N. Y., July 11.—The taking of testimony in the investigation by the joint committee of the Legislature into the charges made against Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan by John A. Connolly closed this afternoon. The committee went into executive session to determine fully the procedure as to summing up. Justice Cohalan made a general denial of all the allegations.

LYNN WOMAN PAYS AFTER SIX HOURS IN JAIL

After spending six hours in Salem jail, Mrs. Carrie M. Porter, thirty-five of No. 67 Pearl street, Lynn, a fashionable dressmaker and mother of three children, was released. She preferred paying her fine and costs, amounting to $31.40, to undergoing a commitment of one week for contempt of court, the alternative offered her by Judge Henry F. Lummus.

She handed the required sum over to Sheriff Samuel A. Johnson, and was allowed to go.

Mrs. Porter, said to be the first woman in Lynn to face imprisonment for contempt of court, was charged with disobeying a court order to pay fifty cents a week on a debt of $26 it was alleged she owed Dr. M. C. Smith of Lynn for dental work.

6 UNDERWORLD GIRLS WILL AID INVESTIGATORS

Six young girls who were victims of the white slave traffic and who are familiar with the haunts and wiles of the system, today offered their services to the Massachusetts White Slave Investigating Commission, appointed by the last Legislature to rid Massachusetts of the evil.

The girls will act as investigators. They will work in the cafes and other resorts and will report their facts to the board. Their ages range from eighteen to twenty-seven.

Police Commissioner O'Meara has conferred with the commission. He offered the services of the police department.

The commission will not make its findings public until it has reported to the Legislature next January. They appeal to the public for all facts dealing with the White Slave traffic and ask that letters be addressed to Room No. 145, State House.

Fish Ball Plea in Woodruff Divorce

Mother Wants Children Kept from Sea Food Father Gave Them.

Declaring that her eight-year-old son came back from a visit to his father with a bad case of indigestion because he had been fed on fried fishballs, Mrs. Mildred H. Woodruff, of No. 1863 Beacon street, today in the Suffolk Superior Court asked for a modification of her divorce decree of a year ago. By the decree the former husband, Louis S. Woodruff, was permitted to see their two minor children at the week ends and to have them long times each year.

Mrs. Woodruff said: "Following a visit of my older son Chamberlain, eight, to his father the boy came home exceedingly insolent. I noticed a change in his demeanor towards me. He told me that he had been fed on fried fishballs. These made him ill as a result of which I was obliged to call two specialists."

Mrs. Woodruff denied that she had visited the home of Dr. Robert Souther. She said in response to questions by Woodruff's counsel that Frank, Ted and Doctors Harry and Robert Souther had visited at her house. She said that Dr. Robert Souther was her father's physician.

DURBORROW FAILS IN PLUCKY SWIM TO LIGHT

Charles B. Durborrow, the Philadelphia bank clerk, today failed in his attempt to swim to Boston light and return. He was taken out of the water at Nix's Mate at 9 o'clock, having gone only about half way. He was in the water five hours. It is twelve miles to the light.

He made a plucky fight, but was unable longer to breast the strong tide that set in on him in the last half of the first leg of the strenuous course.

He dove from the pier at Charlestown bridge at 4:15:15 a. m. He was cheered by passing steamers and smaller boats. Officers at Fort Strong, Long Island, had the glasses on him. They saw that he was swimming pluckily and that he swerved to the right in approaching the sunken shaft that marks Nix's Mate. Then the men in the motor boat hauled him aboard.

MAYOR HURLEY TO AUCTION OLD POLICE LOCKUP

Mayor Hurley, and his plug hat will make more history in Salem tomorrow.

The Mayor is going to turn auctioneer and "knock down" the old police headquarters on Front street to the highest bidder.

"Yep," said he today, "I'm going to sell rolls and all. Some joke, eh? Our police force, furniture and prisoners are to be moved to the new municipal building in Central street. It's up to me to get rid of the old police shack. I'll perch on a barrel or packing case, or hand-box if necessary.

"It's a 2½-story structure, warranted waterproof and fireproof. There are exactly 18,728 bricks in it."

It isn't what you pay for advertising; it's what advertising pays you. Advertising that pays is the only cheap advertising; advertising that doesn't pay is dear at any price. Advertising in the AMERICAN pays best, therefore it is the cheapest.

B. Light's Stock Sold to Boston Merchant

Brings but a Fraction of the Original Cost.

B. Light, 753 Broadway, maker of men's suits that retail from $15 to $25, closed out his entire stock of suits on hand yesterday to the S. Vorenberg Company of Boston at a price that must have entailed tremendous loss to Mr. Light.

So far as we know, this purchase of Mr. Vorenberg's is, without question, the best clothing-buy that has been made in New York city for many years. From authentic sources we learn that these suits were bought for a great deal less than the bare cost of materials from which they are made.

Five thousand suits—all hand tailored—all 1913 models—English Two or Three Button Sacks—all sorts of materials—in every shade that's worn—styles especially adapted for young men.

B. Light Company, of 753 Broadway, has for twenty years made a specialty of manufacturing Men's Suits that retail from $15 to $25 and has built up a reputation among the trade for making the most remarkable values at these prices.

We are unpacking these suits as this announcement is being written. There's not time to make adequate displays. Only some of these suits will be shown in our windows—but they'll all be on our tables—and the sooner you get here the better it will be for you.

Up to this season B. Light Company never could make enough clothes to supply the demand, but the clothing strike, cancellations of orders and the backward season made this extraordinary purchase possible.

FIGHT ON TARIFF IS TODAY TRANSFERRED TO FLOOR OF SENATE

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Underwood-Simmons tariff bill, which, it is expected, will be introduced in the Senate today, is unique in the history of American tariff making, in that a Senate committee will recommend even more drastic reductions than the original bill contained when passed by the House.

The Senate amended measure will average about 4 per cent. under the duties prescribed in the Underwood bill. The still further lowering of duties affects every schedule passed by the House with the exception of the cotton schedule, which was revised in such a manner that the duties to be exacted from the importation of cotton and cotton manufacture remain practically the same as those specified in the House bill.

Democratic Senators, however, say that they have not impaired the revenue producing qualities of the bill through reductions favoring the consumers. According to their figures this has been obviated by an increase in the internal revenue tax on brandies used in fortifying wines to $1.10 per gallon; through a tax on so-called spurious wines used in chemicals, and through the imposition of 1-10 per cent. on cotton futures sold in trade and undelivered.

A Tax on Bananas.

A tax of 1-10 per cent. per pound also put on bananas, solely for revenue producing purposes.

Estimated revenue from these sources is about $8,000,000 in excess of the $257,000 revenue pgedicted for the Underwood bill. Revised estimates on the corporation tax and the income tax amendment, which was redrafted by the Senate committee, place the revenue from these sections of the bill on about an equal footing with the House estimates. The exact figures are as follows:

	House estimate	Senate estimate
Corporation tax	30,000,000	37,000,000
Income tax	70,000,000	69,625,000
Total	100,000,000	106,625,000

An amendment has been made to the income tax, as introduced on the floor of the Senate by the finance committee, which places the date upon which this tax shall become operative at March 1, 1913, instead of January 1, 1913. This will cut the 1913 revenue from the income tax to about $58,000,000 and slightly decrease the estimated revenue for the current year, and that calculated for the original house bill. This is in part counterbalanced by the extension of time granted the wool and sugar schedules during which the Payne-Aldrich rates shall remain operative.

Wool Free December 1.

The extension of time for the Payne-Aldrich tax was the only change made in these schedules. In the sugar schedule the old tariff rates are to be continued until March 1, 1914, and in the wool schedule raw wool is to become free on December 1, 1913, and the Underwood-Simmons rates on wool manufacturings are to become operative on January 1, 1914. The sugar schedule retains May 1, 1916, as the date upon which sugar shall be admitted free of duty.

In the free list the principal additions were raw furs, works of art, gunpowder, angora goat hair and alpaca, cattle, sheep and other domestic live animals, wheat, steel ingots, photographic and moving picture films, ferro manganese, fish, machinery used in making books for the blind, cement, text books used in the schools, jute, bagging, Burin, castiron pipe and agricultural implements.

The chemical schedule was cut from 1 to 5 per cent. The earthenware and glassware schedules suffered a like reduction. In the metal schedule a number of important changes were made besides the free listing of iron and steel products. These included a decrease from 12 to 10 per cent. in beams, from 15 per cent. to 12 per cent. in steel plate and iron forgings, and from 10 to 6 per cent. in steel castings.

Automobiles Reclassified.

Automobiles were re-classified, those valued up to $1,000 being made dutiable at 15 per cent., those from $1,000 to $1,500 at 30 per cent. and autos over $1,500 in value at 45 per cent. Parts remain the same as scheduled in the House bill.

In the wood schedule the principal change was the free listing of cedar logs.

In the agricultural schedule, horses and mules are taxed at 10 per cent, oats are cut from 10 to 16 cents per bushel, and a tax of 33 cents per hundred weight on oatmeal and rolled oats and 9 cents per hundred weight on oat feed was added. Citrus fruits were left as they stood in the Underwood bill, and substantial reductions were made on cheese, seeds, feed, extracts of meat, chocolate and peas.

The wine schedule was amended to increase the duty on brandies used in fortifying wines. The cotton schedule was completely rewritten and classified, the net result being practically the same from a revenue producing standpoint as the Underwood cotton schedule. The duties on stockings and some cotton clothes, however, were slightly reduced.

Substantial Wool Reductions.

The wool schedule was substantially reduced in all the manufactures coming into common use. This includes stockings, blankets, yarns and clothes.

The silk schedule was reclassified from an ad valorem to a specific basis, the general tendency being downward on articles coming into common use.

In the paper schedule a retaliatory clause aimed at Canada was included which permits the levy of a duty upon Canadian paper as high as the tax placed on the paper exported to America.

The income tax exemption of $4,000 in the House measure is changed to $2,000 where it applies to single men and women, and kept at $4,000 where it applies to persons having either a dependent husband or wife, with a further exemption of $500 each for minor children also dependent; this latter provision to be limited to $1,000.

Salem Tax Rate $2.50 Higher This Year

The tax rate in Salem this year is $20.50, or $2.50 higher than last year. The increase is due to the adoption of the charter form of government, making it a thirteen-month year. The city government has asked $841,380.83 to run affairs, $99,063.60 more than was appropriated last year.

Mexicans Score "Yankee Perfidy"

MEXICO CITY, July 11.—Mexican newspapers today printed bitter attacks against "Yankee perfidy," charging that the United States is secretly helping the rebels in Northern Mexico. El Pais, a government organ, declared that United States warships in the harbor at Guaymas used their searchlights to show the rebels the federal positions, and their wireless to help the rebels.

If your feet hurt you from any cause be sure to clip the Dr. Charles Foot Relief Coupon from next Sunday's American. A trial will give instant comfort.

Hungry Cat Ate Thread.

GARDNER, July 11.—William Rourke's cat came into his Parker street store today chewing away industriously. Rourke found a needle in the cat's mouth—pulled steadily and rescued three feet of thread. He decided kitty was hungry and luncheon was served.

1,000 Journeymen Barbers May Quit

One thousand journeymen barbers may strike Monday as a result of continued differences with their employers.

I. W. W. Barbers' Union, No. 185, states many of the master barbers have failed to sign the agreement made when the recent strike was settled.

The union men say the decision of the masters not to reduce the price of a shave to ten cents practically means a strike. They say that the fifteen-cent shave means less pay for the employes, as the tips are fewer.

Bust of J. P. Morgan for Italian Town

Milkmen Warned to Observe Law

Campaign to Safeguard Boston Public is Begun.

As part of a campaign for the safeguarding of the public against unclean milk containers and appliances used in the treatment, mixing and sale of milk, the Bureau of Milk Inspection of the health department has mailed copies of the law to all milkmen of the city.

The law requires cleanliness, not only of the vessels employed in the production of milk and its handling and sale by milkmen, but also applies to the containers used by shopkeepers and in restaurants and hotels. It provides for fines in case of violation.

SOME TWO AND SOME THREE PIECES

For One Week Only

STUNNING SALE

20,000 Yards

Without a doubt the most daring sale ever attempted, even by us, and the biggest ever in the history of the custom clothing trade. The reason back of this event is that we have done a "bully" business this Spring and Summer, and being jealous of our success, we intend to keep it up by giving our customers such bargains in real $40 to $60 suits at a price that will stun competition—yes, even make you wonder how we do it. During this sale, made to measure, for one week only, any $40 to $60 suit in our store—$12.75.

STUNNING STYLES

The Distinctive 5th Ave. Kind

Every yard of woolens in this sale is equal to the best that any 5th Ave. tailor can show, and far superior to some—they cannot surpass the quality—and our enormous growth and business proves conclusively they cannot equal our price of $12.75 for real $40-$60 values.

All our garments are hand tailored in our own workrooms, and finished with far superior linings and attention to details than the average. This is not unusual, as Ritchie & Cornell employ the best experts in the business, and don't charge you a cent extra for this service.

STUNNING VALUES

Worth $40 to $60, at $12.75

The showing this week includes almost every kind of material made and demanded for Summer, from the hundreds of novelty styles and weaves down to the conservative and ever desirable blue Serge, including famous Shamrock Serge, No. 60019.

If you have an eye to economy and quality—a combination that seldom goes together in clothes, except at the R. & C. store—you should not hesitate to attend this sale.

Even if you do not need a suit, come in, look over these woolens at $12.75, made to measure, and make comparisons. Then when you do need that suit you will not find it necessary to shop around, but will have learned that R. & C. values are far ahead of anything in this town at the price, $12.75.

CASSIDY TELLS OF CHECK UPON FOOD DOPERS

The food dopesters have tried to halt the pure food campaign being conducted in Atlantic City by Harry P. Cassidy under the direction of Dr. H. H. Warren, Food Commissioner, and backed by the largest newspapers. Headed by Henry Heide, candy manufacturer of New York, they have brought certiorari proceedings to block the work. Mr. Cassidy tells you today how they were checkmated.

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

You can't block a pure food movement any more than you can keep a squirrel on the ground.

For proof ask Henry Heide, the candy manufacturer of New York, who heads the dopesters' interests trying to block the pure food campaign being conducted in Atlantic City.

Analyzed in the success of the opposite the dopesters' interests have taken certiorari proceedings. In the Atlantic City case, Heide and associates contended that the health code passed by the city commissioners is unconstitutional because it bars adulteration with harmless materials, and for other reasons having to do with its adoption.

Will Frame New Code.

The proceedings temporarily shelve the crusade Dr. Warren and proof were presented from gathering samples of the tainted food and drink under the present code.

But Dr. Warren has urged the commissioners to confer judgment on the certiorari proceedings and frame another health code which will meet all reasonable objections.

Governor Fielder of New Jersey was appealed to to be held in conference with Dr. Warren and the. As a result of the conference Assistant Attorney General Stryker of New Jersey is assisting in framing a new code which will meet the objections of the dopesters.

Mr. Stryker is an authority on pure food laws. He also played the powers of the Attorney-General's office in the service of Dr. Warren and our new law in the enforcement of the laws for the protection of public health.

Dr. Warren and Mr. Stryker had a conference today with Mr. Stryker at Trenton.

Pending the framing of a new health code we shall continue the pure food campaign under the State law and backed by the authority of the State.

The steps taken are not quite as drastic as the Atlantic City code. The dopesters will find them drastic enough, however, to make it uncomfortable for lawbreakers.

To Rush Crusade.

Mr. Stryker promises us at the conference today with an interpretation of the State laws. The crusade can then be pushed to a final clean-up without any danger from legal pitfalls.

We gathered such a grist of evidence against the dopesters they had to take refuge in some legal technicality. The prosecutions of those cases will begin immediately.

The Atlantic City Commissioners passed resolution appointing me a sanitary inspector. This appointment qualifies me to bring State and interstate cases for violations of the pure food laws.

Section 5 of the Federal Pure Food Laws of 1906 empower city and State health officers to prosecute violation of the interstate commerce act as relating to foods.

We have obtained evidence against a number of egg dealers who have shipped "rots and spots" eggs to Atlantic City. These cases will be prosecuted under the federal pure food laws.

The food dopesters know they are up against it. They brought their special attorney from St. Louis to fight the prosecutions.

They have succeeded in obtaining a slight delay. But instead of having 5 city they now have the entire State of New Jersey arrayed against them.

Wouldn't you think they would recognize the handwriting on the wall and in the future make honest goods?

$200 Reward! and a Day of Free Fun at Nahant

Next TUESDAY is Boston American Day at BASS POINT, Nahant!

Everybody is invited to clip the FREE coupons from next Sunday's Boston American and enjoy the entertaining attractions offered at that seaside playground ABSOLUTELY FREE.

Over One Dollar's worth of coupon tickets to the amusements offered at Bass Point will be given absolutely free. In addition to this a half-fare coupon will be printed entitling the holder to a boat trip on the Boston-Bass Point line down to Bass Point and return for the coupon and 25 cents. The regular fare is 50 cents.

To make the day MORE interesting to the crowds of young and old who are SURE to avail themselves of this opportunity, the Boston American's "Woman With the Green Parasol" will visit Bass Point on Tuesday evening, and whoever finds her there will receive a REWARD OF $200.

Here is the way to enjoy this more than a dollar's worth of free fun:

Go to Otis Wharf, on Atlantic avenue, near Rowe's Wharf elevated station, present the coupon clipped from Sunday's American, along with 25 cents additional, and you will receive a round trip ticket to Bass Point. Without the coupon this would cost you 50 cents.

The boats leave frequently during the day, as follows: 9:30, 11 a. m.; 12:30, 2:30, 3:30, 5:10, 8:15 and 8:00 p. m.

If you happen to live in Revere, Lynn or other North Shore towns or cities, you may reach Bass Point by the Bass Point and Revere Steamboat Company boats from Ocean Pier, Revere, or by trolley from Lynn over the Bay State and Nahant Street railways.

When you get to Bass Point you will be permitted to enjoy these attractions absolutely free when you present the coupons which will be published in next Sunday's American:

THE RELAY THEATRE—Regular admission 10 cents.
RELAY DANCING PAVILION—Regular admission 25 cents.
BASS POINT SKATING RINK Regular admission 25 cents.
SOPP-McGUINNESS' FLYING HORSES—Regular fare 10 cents.
THOMPSON'S SCENIC RAILWAY—Regular fare 10 cents.
BASS POINT CASINO DANCE HALL—Regular admission 25 cents.

The "Woman With the Green Parasol" will positively be at Bass Point in the evening, the Boston AMERICAN guarantees.

She will visit the principal hotels and amusement places. She may be found at the steamboat landing as you leave the steamer, on the grounds of the Bass Point House, along Bass Point road to the Hotel Brenton, up the Midway, in the Relay House yard, about Louis' Bay Side Inn, at the Bass Point and Revere steamboat landing or at the terminal of the Nahant street railway.

A full front view picture of the woman in the identical costume she will wear will appear in TUESDAY'S EVENING AMERICAN.

The only rule to the hunt is that the person who identifies the Woman with the Green Parasol must have a copy of next SUNDAY'S American in his or her hand and shall say to her: "You are the Woman with the Green Parasol."

YOU may be lucky or expert enough to catch her.

Why not go along and try it? ANYWAY, take the children for the afternoon.

Boston Flower Gift for Jessie Wilson

Mother of Fiance's Friend Sends Basket to Summer Capital.

Miss Jessie Wilson, daughter of the President, will receive a handsome basket of flowers today from Mrs. C. E. Guild of Newton, whose son, the late Charles E. Guild, Jr., was a close friend of Francis B Sayre, Miss Wilson's fiance.

The basket, which was sent to the Summer White House at Cornish, N. H., is of dull brown, with a long loop handle and the bouquet is of red, white and blue—bachelors' buttons, red roses and white flowers. A frill of old Valenciennes lace surrounds the flowers.

Argentine Jackies to Run on Common

Will Also Row United States Sailors on Charles Tomorow.

A series of athletic events between the men of the Argentine training ship Sarmiento and the crews of American warships in the harbor will begin on Boston Common tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock and will close with boat races between the visitors from South America and the American jackies on the Charles River at 4 p. m.

Mayor Fitzgerald arranged for the meet. The Argentine youths promise to make the events interesting.

Margaret Foley Rejects 7 Suitors

Declares She Prefers Aid for "Cause" to Wedding Pleas.

Miss Margaret Foley, who is leading the Boston suffragists on their "auto hike" through the Bay State en route for Washington, says she declined seven proposals of marriage at Georgetown. Miss Foley is used to having the question popped to her, and declined them all.

"I had rather have money," she laughed gaily, "for the suffrage cause than a wedding offer from any man I know."

Pickwick Ale on tap

"Gen'l'm'n, you're very kind'" said Mr. Weller, "and I'll drink your health in another glass of this delicious bitter hop ale."

Those were dear old days. Then we went out of our way to visit such inns as the "Leathern Bottle," because there we could find the best in food and drink.

If you would take the same amount of care by going only where Pickwick Ale is on tap, you would get the same satisfaction over the convivial glass as we did then.

No ale except Pickwick offers that same delightful bitter hop flavor; no ale gives one that same satisfaction.

BIG BOSTON MEETING FOR HOME RULE

A meeting of the national executive committee of the United Irish League of America will be held here August 3, in aid of the Irish Parliamentary party and its leader, John Redmond, in the closing struggle for Home Rule.

President M. J. Ryan and the other members of the national executive committee are impressed with the necessity of giving every assistance of Ireland's friends in America, financially and morally, at this stage of the struggle, so that the enemies of Home Rule will be defeated and the measure become law next May.

President Ryan says:

"The battle for Irish rights has resulted in the lifting up of the democracy of Great Britain, and working for Ireland and zealous for Ireland and eager to do justice to Ireland are the Asquiths, the Lloyd-Georges, the Birrells and the Churchills of Great Britain, who stand as the spokesmen of the majority of the people of England and Scotland and Wales.

"The Irish race in America are requested to help in a financial way to bear some of the burdens of the old struggle. The money subscribed is used in the propaganda maintained throughout the British Empire. The campaign of slander carried on by a miserable faction of the Irish people and the appeals to ignorance and bigotry must be met with the weapon of truth and the villifiers of the people must be answered in meeting, in pamphlet and through the press."

JOHN L.'S FAME TOO MUCH FOR FARMHANDS

What's the good of being a country gentleman with an excellent farm in Abington if you can't get anybody to work for you? What's the use of being a former heavyweight champion of the world if you have to go out in the fields and rake hay, plant potatoes, milk cows and chop wood? And is that any kind of pastime for an actor gink, anyhow?

"Such is fame," mused John L. Sullivan, once king of the prize ring, as he sat behind a black Havana on the veranda of his country home in Abington today and wondered where he was going to get a farmhand.

"I have played Simon Legree, Hamlet and the rest of them and am willing to give any part a try, but, believe me, if I am going to continue to be the country gentleman at Abington, Mass., U. S. A., I am going to be a real country gentleman, wear a lot of good clothes, smoke good cigars and absolutely refuse to do any of the rough work."

So declared John after he got through "bawling" out Captain James Sullivan of the Court Square police station over the telephone following the disappearance of one Archibald Stanton of the West End, whom Sullivan sent to Abington to help John L. out of his difficulty.

Ever since the ice quit the Abington fields John L. has been trying to get a man to do the chores about his farm, but they all balked at his reputation.

Thus they all quit, and finally, in desperation, John L. appealed to Captain Sullivan to find him a man. The former champion knew the captain when he was known as "Jersey Jimmy." "Jersey" said "Sure, I'll get you a man." He did get two, but when they heard who they were going to work for, both threw up their hands and yelled "nix!"

"Jersey" then decided the only way to get a man to work for John L. was to send him a man who didn't know who he was going to work for. Accordingly, when Archibald Stanton appeared he sent him to Abington with Patrolman Edward Day.

John L. hailed Archie with joy as he stepped off the train. Archie wasn't enthusiastic. He was taken to the farm and shown his room. But when the sun rose over Abington the following morning Archie had disappeared. The next day "Jersey Jimmy" received a letter which read:

I did not go to work for Mr. Sullivan when I got there, because I found out that he was the big prize-fighter, and I was afraid that something might happen, because I talk back sometimes. Enclosed you will find car fare.

Brothers Battle Over Fishing Boat

Shot Fired on T Wharf: It Missed Its Mark.

Gaetano Camardo and his brother, Pasquale, members of the Italian fishing fleet who sell their daily catches at the street end of T wharf, fought over a basket of squid today.

Gaetano ordered Pasquale to drop the bait, and when he didn't, the police charge, that he drew a revolver and fired one shot which missed. The shooting caused a few lively minutes. Special Officer "Jerry" Desmond pounced on the man with the gun. He was booked at Station 1 on the charge of carrying a loaded revolver without a permit.

'CHARLEY BEST BOY EVER,' SAYS MRS. GATES

NEW YORK, July 11.—Declaring, "Why, Charley's the best boy that ever lived," Mrs. Charles G. Gates denies the story that a separation from her husband, son of the late "Bet-You-a-Million" Gates, is imminent.

She says there isn't even a disagreement, explaining: "Charley left last night to visit one of our mines in Canada and unless a sick nephew in Denver has a turn for the worse, I'll wait right here for him and we'll go back to Minneapolis together."

The story was told that recently he and his father-in-law, Frank Hoprood, had a fracas in a Minneapolis hotel over Gates' determination to give away $1,000,000 a year in tips. Gates denied the row when he got to New York, and now comes Mrs. "Charley" saying it is all "utterly foolish and malicious gossip."

Aviator Collapses in Air-Boat Race

Roy Francis Is Overcome on Beach; Glenn Martin Starts.

MACATAWA BAY, Mich., July 11.—Exhausted by the strain of a wild early morning ride and a battle against wind and waves, Roy Francis, aviator, of San Francisco, collapsed on the beach here today in his second stop in the 900-mile Chicago to Detroit airboat race, after a flight from Michigan City. He had planned this early morning trip as a coup, in order to overtake and pass Beckwith Havens, who was leading.

Havens, however, was well on his way to Charlevoix, his destination for today. A dispatch from Chicago stated that Glenn Martin had started. He left the ground at Grant Park in Chicago at 7:48 a. m. and was flying at top speed to overtake the man who had two days' start on him.

WOMAN TELLS OF DROWNING STEP-CHILDREN

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 11.—Mrs. James Yates, jailed with Florence Farris, fifteen, her daughter by her first marriage, declared, the police say, that she drowned her two step-children, Ligon Yates, twelve, and Ida May Yates, ten, in a spirit of retaliation because they and her husband mistreated her.

The woman, according to the alleged confession, lured the children to a pool under a pretence of going blackberry picking. The elder boy struggled to escape, and clung to a bush. In the meantime the girl fled, but, it is alleged, was caught and taken back to the pool by Florence Farris. The two victims' younger brother, James, six, escaped and ran a mile to a neighbor's house and gave the alarm.

HURRY PARIS BURIAL OF AGNES FIRTH, AVIATRIX WHO SWALLOWED POISON

PARIS, July 11.—Miss Agnes Firth MacDuff, the unhappy American girl who swallowed corrosive sublimate on June 17 and lingered on until July 3 (not the Fourth as was reported), was buried quietly and almost surreptitiously at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning in the new Neuilly Cemetery at Puteaux, five miles from Paris.

No one attended the interment except the sexton of the American church in the Rue De Berri, the grave diggers, the undertakers and the curator of the picturesque little cemetery. No prayers were read, as the body was laid in its last resting place. The curator, a soft-hearted man, sprinkled a few handfuls of earth on the bier, however, and the grave diggers did likewise.

A wooden cross, bearing the name of the dead girl, will be erected over her grave. Great mystery still surrounds Miss MacDuff's last moments. The doctors will say little, while official discretion seals the lips of the American Consul General, who knows more than any one else. The grave of Miss MacDuff lies in a peaceful spot beneath the shade of clipped sycamores and lindens. M. Morane, the aviator, who was her instructor at the Villa Coublay aerodrome, said today:

"Miss MacDuff came to me with an interpreter, three months ago. She made quick progress and soon learned to fly alone. I always took her to be neurasthenic. She seemed very sad and spent much time in tears. We assumed that she had had an unhappy love affair and were not surprised to hear of her distressing act."

17 SCOTTISH TEACHERS ON BOSTON VISIT

Eight bright Scotch schoolmarms are included in the party of 17 teachers from Scotland who have just arrived in Boston. They were tendered an official welcome today by Superintendent of Schools Dyer. They are scheduled to be entertained at several receptions by Scotch societies during their stay here.

The girls show a keen interest in Boston, and declare that the women here are the best dressed they have seen in many a day. They say American fashions are charming.

Miss Catherine Smith said: "Of course we haven't been here long enough to get a real idea of what Boston is like, but we're very pleased with what we've seen of it. We think your people are charming. Someone asked us if we saw any smoking on the steamer—not if we smoked, though the men of the party do—and I said I didn't see any smoking. I can't believe that any lady smokes, and I don't think any woman should."

The party is under the leadership of W. A. Main, with headquarters at the United States Hotel. The misses are Catherine C. Smith, Annie S. Allan, Margaret Sommerville, Margaret Akitt, Jean Smith, Jean Senior, Ina Taylor and Isa Brisbane.

Today the entire party was inspecting the park system and visiting a number of the schools. At 5 o'clock they were scheduled to leave for Nantasket, accompanied by a Caledonian Club delegation.

Tomorrow they will be the guests of the Scotch Charitable Society. They will visit City Hall and ride to historic Concord and Lexington. They leave Boston for New York late Saturday.

14 Mexican War Veterans in Camp

LONDON, O., July 11.—America's oldest living war veterans, survivors of the Mexican War, are at their annual national encampment here. From a once goodly host, only fourteen of the old soldiers were physically able to attend. A majority of the fourteen are blind or deaf, or so feeble with age that they had to totter about, using the eyes and ears of grandchildren and great-grandchildren in place of their own.

X-Ray Inventor Victim of Genius

Burton E. Baker Operated on Eight Times for Malady.

HARTFORD, Ct., July 11.—Burton E. Baker, inventor of the X-ray tube, is dead at his home, literally the victim of his own genius.

The inventor's last illness was due to exposure to the powerful "ray," and manifested itself in wart-like growths and burns which spread through his system.

Discussing his experience in his efforts to be cured, Mr. Baker recently told how he had been advised by an eminent Philadelphia specialist to go home and die.

"I went home, but I did not die," he added. "But I did suffer awful tortures. In all eight or nine operations have been made upon me."

Slit Skirt Shocks "Blind" Woman, 80

New Garment First Thing She Sees When Vision Is Restored.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Mrs. John McCafferty, eighty, who, after an operation, sees for the first time in fifteen years, had some remarkable experiences and sensations during the last two days.

When the bandage was removed from her eyes one of the first things she saw was a slit skirt. She was speechless in shocked amazement. Then a girl in a short, using the eyes and ears of grandchildren and great-grandchildren in place of their own, passed. "Oh, what a funny dress that is," she cried. "And it makes the girl walk just like a Japanese!"

OPEN FIGHT ON ICE TRUST IN FALL RIVER

A fight against the Ice Trust in the home city of Attorney General Swift will be opened tonight, when former Mayor John T. Coughlin will head a party of protesting business men before the special Aldermanic investigating committee.

The former mayor will tell the investigators of the conversation which took place between a prominent Fall River dealer, now charging sixty cents a cwt. fairweight for ice, when offered a big supply at a low price. The dealer is alleged to have replied: "I know my business. I wouldn't buy your ice if you offered it to me for ten cents a ton. I don't want any houses filled, anyway."

Beverly and Leominster are also planning immediate local investigations.

The Attorney-General declared today that every short weight case brought to his attention would be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

Trained Nurse for a Three-Pound Dog

Mrs. Carter's Pet Has Nervous Prostration at Newport.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 11.—Mrs. William E. Carter, a Titanic survivor, not only gave up a dinner party because of the serious illness of Mee Too, her three-pound Pekinese dog, but she has engaged a trained nurse for the pet.

Nervous prostration due to traveling in the heat to Newport from Philadelphia is blamed for the sickness.

Mee Too is heavily insured. All the dog doctors of Newport have been in attendance, and now Dr. Hair of New York has been summoned.

Gives $300,000 to Divorced Spouse

"Lucky" Baldwin's Daughter Settles Fortune on ex-Husband.

OAKLAND, Cal., July 11.—A settlement of $300,000 was made by Mrs. Anita Baldwin McClaughry on her late husband when she secured an interlocutory decree of divorce.

Mrs. Anita Baldwin McClaughry is the daughter of the late E. J. (Lucky) Baldwin and $10,000,000 heiress.

The plaintiff testified that she and her husband quarreled so often over the cost of living as a result of his economical ideas that her health became impaired. They were married in Carson City, Nev., in 1900.

The custody of the two children of the McClaughrys is to be shared by both parents, according to the terms of an agreement reached out of court.

Gives California Rate-Making Power

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—By a decision of the California Railroad Commission, made public yesterday, the State takes into itself the power to regulate the rates of steamship companies plying over regular routes from one California port to another, even though the ships making such trips traverse the high seas. It proclaims for the first time the right of a State to fix the rates for commerce between its ports, even when that commerce traverses the high seas.

3 Hingham Boys in Court as Thieves

Three boys were in the Hingham Court today, charged with breaking into W. C. Bowker's ice cream store at Queen Anne Corner, Hingham. Deputy Sheriff John T. Condon of Rockland arrested George C. Jacobs there, and Jacobs' story resulted in the arrest of the other two at Hingham. The other two claimed at first to be the two boys thought drowned Monday night in escaping from Hatmsford Island, but this assertion was disproved.

MAY EXHUME GIRL'S BODY IN LAKE MYSTERY

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 11.—Fresh evidence which may justify the exhumation of the body of nineteen-year-old Alice Crispell, whose body was found in Harvey Lake, was discovered today by the county detectives who are trying to solve the mystery of the girl's death. This advice, it was decided, may implicate Herbert Johns, the girl's suitor, who was arrested in connection with the case, but who was exonerated last night by a coroner's jury.

If the authorities definitely decide to exhume the body, the vital organs will be examined for traces of poison, and an examination of the girl's throat will be made to ascertain whether or not she had been choked.

The jury which exonerated Johns was bitterly criticized today by the county officers.

County Detective D. C. McKelvey, who worked up the case against Johns, declared that Johns would yet be held for the Grand Jury as the result of the discovery of new evidence.

"The next time we questioned Johns, one other person will be on hand whose presence will have a decided effect on the prisoner," said McKelvey. This person is believed to have been near the scene of the tragedy on the night of July 4, when Alice was drowned.

Although exonerated at the inquest Johns is still in jail. His preliminary hearing before Alderman Brown is set for tonight.

MRS. JOSEPH LEITER, wealthy Washington woman, who designs "comfort" shoes for her two sons.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Mrs. Joseph Leiter, often called an example of the perfect American mother of wealth, has designed "comfort" shoes for her two sons, something like the old-fashioned sandals, but made of cloth instead of leather, and with side pieces to support the ankles.

UNITED STATES MAKES SECRET PLANS FOR WAR

"The Gibraltar of the East," has been placed in complete readiness for war.

The heavy armament of Fort McKinley has been dismantled and placed in position on Corregidor.

Fort McKinley's garrison of regulars has been transferred to Corregidor. Philippine scouts now garrison the former fortress.

All the field artillery guns have been called in from the various ports in the islands and mounted, ready for action, on Corregidor.

Every available inch of barbed wire has been shipped to the Gibraltar of the Orient and is being constructed into entanglements to be used against landing forces.

All insular and United States government reserve funds have been removed from the depositaries at Manila and placed for safe keeping on Corregidor.

Communication is Barred.

In addition, communication to and from Corregidor is prohibited, under penalty of court-martial. All mail from the island is censored. All mail to those stationed on the island is opened and read. No passes are allowed.

Mortars destined for the Philippines are now in process of construction at the government factories, but it was feared they would not be ready in time for use in a possible crisis.

The One Hundred and Twenty-fourth Coast Artillery Corps at Fort Andrews, Boston, is under waiting orders to be ready to start for Manila at a moment's notice.

This startling information is in the possession of the AMERICAN today, through the receipt of a letter from Manila dated June 4.

"ARE WE TO HAVE ANOTHER MAINE INCIDENT?" asks the writer after recording the proposed trip of the Japanese gunboat to the eastern possessions of the United States.

Hinged delay on the part of the United The impudence of Japan over the non-States in reppling to her note calling for a vindication of her national honor had controversy in California has been known and discussed here for weeks.

The treatment of Koreans in Hemet, Cal., has only added fuel to the Japanese resentment and produced a tart supplemental reminder to her original note.

Still President Wilson and Secretary Bryan have made no reply.

Viscount Chinda, the Japanese ambassador, has made several visits to the State Department of late. These conferences with Secretary Bryan have been with the sole purpose of making clear to the American government the intense feeling in Japan and the advisability of prompt action in Washington. Silence has ceased to be diplomacy, Viscount Chinda has urged. Only an immediate recognition by the United States of the gravity of the situation can avert deplorable results of both nations.

First Point of Attack.

That the Philippines would be Japan's first point of attack from the first hour of war is a foregone conclusion. Its remoteness from the centre of the American fighting strength makes it particularly vulnerable despite the superhuman efforts that have been made to make by principal ports invulnerable to a foreign invader.

Apart from that the position of the United States as regards the natives is a precarious one. Only 3 per cent. of the inhabitants can vote. And that 3 per cent. represents the proportion of the islanders who would join the United States in case of war.

The vast majority could easily be persuaded to ally themselves with the Japanese armies, or any other invading force that landed on the islands.

The defences of Manila are among the most formidable in the world. And Manila, in all probability, would be the last city in the Philippines to capitulate.

Gibraltar of the East.

Manila would, without a doubt, be the toughest nut Japan would have to crack during the entire war. Corregidor, the guardian of the north channel of Manila Harbor, is not called "the Gibraltar of the East" for nothing. It is a long, irregular reef-like island three to four miles in length and rising 700 feet out of the ocean in some places. Two million dollars or more has been spent on its fortifications.

The chief defence of the southern entrance to the bay is El Fraile, a small island that has been literally encased in steel and concrete until it looks like a stationary battleship. The islands of Caballo and Carabao are scarcely less strongly fortified.

The fortification of El Fraile is not completed. Whether it can be finished before the outbreak of a possible war is a problem that is sorely trying the army engineers. Corregidor, under the present conditions is in a position to withstand a six years' siege so far as food and water supply are concerned.

One supreme conclusion is to be drawn from the astounding revelations that have come to light regarding the situation in the far East:

Japan is putting herself in readiness for a naval war. The United States, recognizing that the Mikado's fleet would be hurled at the Philippines at once upon the declaration of war, is trying to forestall and meet such an attack at every possible point.

PAULINE FREDERICK, actress wife of Architect Frank M. Andrews, who is back on the stage. She declares that her career of love is a failure.

CAREER OF LOVE, FAILURE, SAYS MISS FREDERICK

NEW YORK, July 11.—Pauline Frederick, actress wife of Frank M. Andrews, the well-known architect, who last Autumn returned to her beloved profession, is playing a real life part similar to that of Sarah in the "Little Princess," it was learned today.

The sudden change of social station, she declared to a reporter, is because her rich husband is in some business trouble and has failed to provide properly for her maintenance. She still resides in a handsome apartment at No. 36 Central Park South, but even this is to be given up just as soon as the lease expires.

Where she will then reside she does not know. It depends upon the income she will make hereafter and also upon a settlement with her husband.

Just at present his affairs are somewhat involved, for he has become a party to numerous lawsuits. There have been rumors that Mr. and Mrs. Anderson were legally separated. This is not so. They are living separately in this city.

"When I married Mr. Andrews, about four years ago," said Miss Frederick, "I decided to choose a career of love instead of fame. But I soon saw that the pursuit of love and happiness was not a silvery path through a garden of roses. Mr. Andrews seemed to glory in being the companion of a stage celebrity, but after our marriage he soon let me know that he objected to being looked upon merely as 'Pauline Frederick's husband.'

"Last Fall I decided to go back to the stage. I did so partly because my husband seemed indifferent as to what I did and partly because I feared that he was in love with another woman, the daughter of an American diplomat and the wife of an officer of the Royal Dragoon Guards, England's crack cavalry regiment.

"All of my expenses have been met from my own income since I returned to my profession—a heavy expense for one who had become accustomed to the luxury of Mr. Andrews' life that had been thrust upon me. But with my brave little mother beside me I have been doing my best, my motto being 'single blessedness forevermore.'"

HANDS BAD WITH SALT RHEUM

Small Water Pimples on Fingers. Itched and Burned. Painful and Sore Cracks. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured in a Month.

Brooklin, Me.—"A few years ago my hands were very badly afflicted with salt rheum. At first there was an eruption of small water pimples on the inside of the fingers, and by not paying any attention to the humor my hands gradually became worse and began to itch and burn and one after another cracks appeared around the nails, on the inside of the fingers and on the bend of the joints until I was discouraged, as they were very painful and sore. I had to omit work that required putting my hands in water and could hardly work at all on account of the bleeding cracks.

"I finally procured some Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and I found by washing my hands in quite warm water and Cuticura Soap that they were improving. I began wrapping my fingers nightly in pieces of soft linen, after a good application of Cuticura Ointment which was very soothing. In a month my hands were completely cured and I have never been afflicted with the trouble since." (Signed) Mrs. C. L. Parker, Nov. 22, 1912.

When you buy a fine toilet soap think of the advantages Cuticura Soap possesses over the most expensive toilet soap ever made. In addition to being absolutely pure and refreshingly fragrant, it is delicately yet effectively medicated, giving you two soaps in one, a toilet and a skin soap at one price. Sold throughout the world. Samples of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

Penfield Opposed for Envoyship

His $90,000 Wilson Campaign Gift May Cost Him Place.

WASHINGTON, July 11—Chairman Bacon of the Foreign Relations Committee has made no effort to call his committee together to consider the nomination of Frederick Courtland Penfield of Pennsylvania to be ambassador to Austria-Hungary.

When the committee does take up this case there will be strong Republican opposition, based upon the claim that this appointment is political and made solely to reward the appointee for his large financial contributions to the Wilson campaign.

Mr. Penfield admitted he contributed upward of $90,000 toward the Wilson cause, as a witness before the Clapp committee investigating campaign contributions.

Mother in Hospital, Girl Dies Within Call

While Mrs. Eva Merchant, of Newton, rest on a cot in the Beverly Hospital, recovering from an operation, unknown to her in an adjoining room is the dead body of her three-year-old daughter Helen, who was fatally hurt when struck by a Gloucester train.

While the mother was in the hospital, the child was staying with the family of John Bondrout, No. 35 Bennett street, Beverly. With four-year-old John Bondrout, Jr., she strayed on the railroad tracks near the Elliot street crossing.

The flagman, George Hayes, 100 yards away, shouted to the children to get off the tracks. The boy did so, but the little girl stood still. Hayes ran towards her, but was too late to reach her before she was struck by the train.

Miss Flynn Talks to Silk Strikers

PATERSON, N. J., July 11.—In her first speech to strikers since a jury failed to agree at her trial on a charge of inciting silk mill strikers to rioting, Elizabeth Gurley Flynn of the Industrial Workers of the World said they should remember a strike can be won inside a mill as easily as without.

BAN EXCURSIONS TO AID NEWPORT EXCLUSIVE IDEA

NEWPORT, R. I., July 11.—Business men here are wondering just how they will solve the Summer problem—whether they will submit to the beach being maintained exclusively for the wealthy visitors, or start a campaign that will result in the place becoming a popular amusement resort.

No more excursions, it is said, are coming by boat or railroad to Newport this season. And it is stated that prominent Summer residents have declared they will block every movement tending to bring amusement seekers here.

The cutting of the boat service will be felt especially at the beach, where 600 are employed, although merchants in general will be affected.

Excursionists are a large source of income of the beach, which purchases great quantities of supplies from the city merchants, while the employes spend their money here. Thus the money brought here by strangers is placed in circulation.

Johnson and Palzer May Meet in Paris

Heavyweight Champion Is Almost 'Broke' and Must Get Busy in Ring.

By JACK CONWAY.

Uncle Samuel! Mr. John Arthur Johnson, a burly colored gentleman who has spent several rather exciting years of his life in this vicinity of Chicago, and who recently fled to France in order to avoid spending a year in the state's care, declares that he will never return to this country. He will have a rather difficult time getting along without Mr. Johnson on this side of the deep, blue Atlantic—we don't think.

John Arthur, indeed, hates him self. He is also very retiring and does not express an opinion on anything—but says—and he says it very emphatically—that he would be glad to settle Wall street, and the majority of human beings residing in the United States will go about their business as of yore.

Can it be that Johnson is not what he used to be? Can it be that Johnson has passed the period of gloom in this country? We refuse to believe this situation to be true, but sadly think that it is necessary for us to do this.

WILL FORFEIT $30,000 BOND.

JOHNSON fled from this country rather than spend a year in prison. He secured his liberty by giving his personal bond for $30,000—a large bond, we will admit, but one if he does not return to this country immediately back he will, ever, is evidently willing to come $30,000. We know several young men who would spend two years be hind gray walls for $30,000.

Johnson may be matched to clash with Al Palzer, the big Iowa heavyweight, in Paris. The heavyweight champion is very popular in France. The people over there will probably believe him when he says he was treated unfairly in this country. No thinking person will take the trouble to deny Johnson's statements.

Johnson must be almost "broke," as his recent trial in Chicago cost him a small fortune, while he has been spending his money freely during the past three years.

PALZER IS JOKE FIGHTER.

JOHNSON probably figures that he will be able to demand a large purse to split Palzer in Paris. The white "hope" is a joke fighter, and would be easy for Johnson, even in his present poor condition.

We have no use for Johnson as a man, but nobody can very well deny that he was a wonderful ring man when he was in his prime. At the age of thirty-five Johnson is probably able to defeat every heavyweight in the world, with the possible exceptions of Sam Langford and Joe Jeanette.

AS CRAZY AS A FOX.

THE champion, however, is a shrewd, cunning fellow, and will not consent to meet a man whom he is not sure of beating. He will look his opponents carefully and boost his bank account a few pegs.

Johnson has hurt the boxing game in this country since he defeated Jeffries. He is a disgrace to himself and to the sport which he selected as a profession. That's why we are so grieved (?) because he is never going to visit our shores again.

GALLANT HOPES TO WIN.

JOHNNY GALLANT, the Chelsea lightweight, and Bobby Wilson of Canada will clash in a twelve-round bout in Chicopee on next Monday night. Both boys have made great reputations in the ring and should put up a smashing battle.

Gallant is one of the best lightweights in New England. He is the hardest hitting boy of his weight in this section of the country, and is confident that he will stop Wilson.

Willie Greene of South Boston will meet "Young" Sullivan of Chelsea in the semi-final of eight rounds. There will also be two good six-round preliminary bouts.

SIMONS IS AFTER BOUTS.

ARTHUR SIMONS, the New Orleans bantamweight, is still in Boston, and says that he is open to meet any boy of his weight in New England. Simons recently defeated Patsy Greene of Cambridge at the Atlas A. A., and if handled properly should make a good record in the ring. If Simons is unable to get any bouts at local clubs he plans to make a trip to New York.

POWERS IT FIELD AGAIN.

DAVE POWERS of Malden is open to meet any welterweight in New England. Powers has won his last three fights, and will probably be pitted against Tony Morengo, the hard hitting Roxbury welterweight, at the next show of the Atlas A. A.

BROOKS IN BOSTON.

TERRY BROOKS, the Brooklyn lightweight, is back in Boston. He is under the management of Tim Waldman, and says that he would like to get another bout with Frankie Mack of Beachmont.

MARBLEHEAD TO BE SCENE OF BIG REGATTA

By HARRY C. THOMAS.

The mid-summer season of the Corinthian Yacht Club of Marblehead that will be sailed at Marblehead on August 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 will bring together one of the biggest fleets of racing yachts that has ever been in the harbor.

It is the intention of the regatta committee of that hustling organization to beat all records and it is expected that nearly 200 boats of all descriptions will start in each race.

It will bring together the combined fleets of the Boston, Eastern, Manchester and Corinthian clubs and the Interclub Association. Even the smaller boats such as dories and one design boats, will find classes each day.

The Corinthian Club makes it a practice to entertain the visiting yachtsmen in such a manner that they all want to come again, and the club hangs up a good list of prizes for each race of the week.

Many yacht clubs are planning for cruises starting Saturday, August 5, and Sunday, August 6, 7, 8 and 9, culminate at Marblehead August 4 in time for the first race.

Wednesday is known as "Ladies' Day" and the club veranda are reserved for the women. A band concert is a feature on this day.

At the mid-Summer series, many old scores are fought out by the owners of different yachts that have been up all the fair greens, the development has been marvelous. No little of the responsibility has fallen upon Willard E. Robinson, who has worked unceasingly to have the Belmont links rank new in the State. He has accomplished his end and final recognition must come soon in the award to that course of a national championship of the Lesley Cup matches.

President Oliver, of the Advertising Men's Association, showed that he was as competent to lead his association in golf as in business when in the qualifying round of that great championship at Hot Springs, Va., he turned in an 82, which was the low gross of the field.

Despite the fact that the Essex County links were robbed of their sumptuous clubhouse, the members continue to play, Recent couples of North Shore society folk entered a foresomes tournament, making good scores and enjoying it for golf's sake.

The Commonwealth Country Club is gradually coming into its own, and has within the last two years gathered in a number of first rate players. They were especially successful recently in their team match with Brockton, which was played on the Commonwealth course. Commonwealth won six points to one. N. C. King being the only Brockton man to win his match.

Golf Notes

By H. P. FARRINGTON.

There has been a slump in the golfing activities of the State this week, caused by the lack of an open tournament. The last meeting at Wollaston, the day after the Fourth, was well attended, but the golfers have nothing else in the way of an open meeting until July 26, when the Hatherly Golf Club of North Scituate Beach holds its usual event.

The "Ad" Golfers who are at Hot Springs, Va., for this week are beginning to wonder why they went South to hold their tournament. The past two years Preston Woods, N. H., has been the Mecca for the Advertisers, and they have always enjoyed wonderfully cool weather and much fun. The heat in the hills of the Blue Ridge country is telling on many of the players, and they are present in less numbers than in former years.

Massachusetts golfers will hail the advent of the second executive committee's tournament, which has been announced for August 20 to 23 this year. The first meeting was held at the Country Club last year, and the innovation proved a marked success. This August it is to be played over the new 18-hole course of the Belmont Springs Country Club. This will be the first tournament that has come to Belmont of any nature outside of an entirely club event, and indeed is a formal recognition by the State that at Belmont Springs there is a course worthy of this meeting and of the play of the best golfers.

Just what has been done at Belmont in five years to make the course what it is would fill a volume, but to those who went over the ground five years back a thousands of long of rock were being blasted and hauled away to make the fair greens, the development has been marvelous. No little of the responsibility has fallen upon Willard E. Robinson, who has worked unceasingly to have the Belmont links rank new in the State. He has accomplished his end and final recognition must come soon in the award to that course of a national championship of the Lesley Cup matches.

G. H. Burr and F. C. Inman, in the other semi-final defeated H. A. Plummer and C. M. Bull, Jr., at 11—9, 8—8.

Sam Langford's Father Is Dead

DIGBY, N. S., July 11.—Word has reached here of the death of Robert Langford father of Sam Langford the Boston boxer, who died at his home at Weymouth Falls last Friday. He is survived by his wife, four sons and two daughters. His son Samuel is at present in America.

Swimming Races.

A series of swimming races under the auspices of the Recreation Department of the city of Boston will be held at Dewey Beach, Charlestown, tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. The list of races will include events for both junior and senior divisions of boy and girl competitors.

LEO FREIDE TO DEFEND CANOE CUP FOR AMERICA

NEW YORK, July 11.—At a special meeting of the International Cup Committee of the New York Canoe Club yesterday, it was decided to let Leo Friede, Manhattan Canoe Club, defend the international cup against Reuben B. Bratton, the Canadian challenger. The decision was reached after taking into consideration the work of Friede in the special trial races sailed on Gravesend Bay this week.

The start and the finish of the international race will be off the Marine and Field Club at Bath Beach. The first race will be started at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, weather permitting. The challenger went over the course and made excellent time. In a series race against James E. Newman, the American alternate, and H. D. Murphy of Boston, Friede was not on the buoy.

Church-Mathey Beat Boston Tennis Stars

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 11.—The field of lawn tennis players in the cup tournament is narrowed down to the finalists. T. R. Pell, the former Olympic player, in the semi-final of the Atlantic cup singles, defeated G. P. Touchard after three sets at 9 7, 3—6, 6—3. Pell was very steady. He played chiefly from back courts, always checking Touchard's cross-court shots and passing him as he came into the net.

G. M. Church and Dean Mathey, the Princeton pair, created a stir by defeating N. W. Niles and A. S. Dabney, the Eastern States' champions, of Boston. The score was 8—6, 3—6 6—4.

Montreal Cricketers Get an Even Break

PHILADELPHIA, July 11.—The Montreal cricketers succeeded in making a draw of their match with the German town Cricket Club after seven of the visitors were retired in their second inning, when 158 runs were scored. Germantown scored 452 runs in the first inning and the Canadians 278.

Claims Thrown Out.

AUBURN, N. Y., July 11.—Secretary John H. Farrell of the National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs decided adversely the claim of Frank Kubat vs. Toronto and the claim of Wanner vs. Holyoke.

Logan in Match Race at Revere

Pat Logan, the South Boston veteran cyclist, has shown such marvelous form since his return to the path after an absence of nearly two years, that he will be given a chance to prove whether he is a genuine "come-back" tomorrow night when he will be pitted against Carlos Stephanie, a French sprinter of note, in a match race of a half-mile and one-mile heats at the Revere Cycle track.

Julien Rudolphe, the young French pare follower who rode such a grand race against Jimmy Moran, Worth Mitten and Caesar Simar last Tuesday night, will be given another opportunity to show his real worth when he will ride against Moran and George Wiley, the world's champion, in a 25-mile race behind motors.

Free Baseball Tickets for You, Fans! Root for Red Sox! Root for Braves!

If you hold one of the numbered baseball checks which the AMERICAN has distributed broadcast, it would be well for you to closely scan the sport pages of the AMERICAN'S Sporting Extra Edition today, tomorrow and every day until further notice.

Every one of the small checks which have been, and are being distributed, is numbered. The AMERICAN prints, each day, in the Sporting Extra Edition 100 duplicate numbers. If you hold a check, all you have to do is to compare the number printed on it with the list of numbers printed in the Sporting Extra Edition each day and, when a duplicate of the number you hold appears in the AMERICAN, it entitles you to a free ticket to any one of the Red Sox or Pilgrims' games—take your choice, it costs you nothing.

"Standing room only" is the watchword at Fenway Park and at the Walpole street grounds these days, but holders of AMERICAN numbered checks do not have to stand up, as the tickets now being issued entitle the holders to a grandstand seat at any game and at any time during the season of 1913.

Remember, all you have to do is to watch the daily list in the Sporting Extra Edition of the AMERICAN and when a duplicate of the number you hold appears, bring or send same to the AMERICAN Promotion Department, 8 Winthrop square, and you will receive a free ticket to any one of the Red Sox or Braves' games on the home grounds.

If YOU haven't yet obtained any of these checks, ask your newsdealer or newsboy, who will be glad to supply you.

Checks may also be obtained at AMERICAN Promotion Dept.

Watch your numbers carefully. If your number does not appear today it may tomorrow. When it does, it means a free Red Sox or Pilgrim ticket for you.

Only Full Games for Chicago Hereafter

CHICAGO, July 11.—No more games at the Chicago National League grounds will be curtailed to allow a team to catch a train, according to an edict issued by President Murphy. The order will do away, Mr. Murphy thinks, with any incentive to "stalling," which umpires charged the Chicago team did in the second game with St. Louis here last Sunday.

Mr. Murphy however, still denies that the umpires took the right course in forfeiting the game to the visitors and today appealed from President Lynch's decision sustaining the arbiters to the National League's directors.

PILGRIMS ARE OUT FOR CLEANUP

The St. Louis Cardinals and their stay of the South End grounds today is the end of a five game series with the Pilgrims. The Pilgrims have won the four games played and everything points to a fifth straight victory over the Missouri City players this afternoon.

Grimes who is conceded to be the best of the St. Louis staff of twirlers will make his second start against the Pilgrims at this writing today. Grimes went well in the first game until nearing the end when he was batted hard.

Hilter Dickson or James will work for the Pilgrims. The chances favor the latter however as he has not pitched since the Pilgrims' series in Philadelphia and should be in shape to take a slam at the helpless Cardinals.

The Pilgrims will continue to play their usual peppery game which has marked their work against the Cardinals and it looks as though the Pirates the next Western team to play here will encounter plenty of trouble from Stallings' peppy aggregation.

Sixty small boys all with on the game today as guests of President Gaffney of the Boston Club. These boys will be in charge of Miss Lucy Hynes director of the Mystic Playgrounds Charlestown. This is the first number of boys who will be entertained at one of the Pilgrims' games during the present season of baseball.

"Red" Doin Denies Friction Among Men

PHILADELPHIA July 11 Despite the fact that Manager Dooin has benched a quartet of his famous old guard and that it has been whispered that some of the regulars have not been playing their heads off of late Dooin said today that there is no friction among the Phillies. He made the emphatic saying that the second string fellows could not be much worse than the regulars and he hoped they would do better.

Moore, Keller, Jensen and Paskert were all out of yesterday's game and in their places were Walsh, Dolan, Miller and Becker. Moore and Paskert were called upon to do some pinch hitting, but they were not very successful.

For some time the Phillies have been falling off in the play that kept them at the top and it has been common report that there are factions in the club, each worked by knave. But this Dooin denies, while he admits that one or two of the men have not been playing in their best form.

Nap Players Join Baseball Fraternity

NEW YORK, July 11 —Sixteen members of the Cleveland Baseball team of the American League have joined the Baseball Players Fraternity. President David L. Fultz announced the list of new members to be as follows:

Fred Blanding, Raymond Bates, Fred Carisch, Raymond Chapman, Frederick Eccshorn, Vean Gregg, Joseph Jackson, Wilbur Johnston, George Kahler, Grover Land, Napoleon Lajoie, William Mitchell, Ivan Olson, Steve O'Neil, John Ryan, William Steen.

The addition of the Cleveland club players gives the fraternity representation in every club of the two major leagues and a membership a total in excess of 400.

ST LOUIS July 11 The Red Sox finish up their series with the Browns here today and start journeying to Chicago. Although they have passed two games so far on the Western trip the champions seem to have recovered from their slump and are working with more confidence and power than it has done this season.

Today the Sox will finish the Browns best in the way of pitching by Ed Hamilton and should have a hard time beating the youngster. Hamilton is the last two games, beat the Tigers and Naps by scores of 2 to 1. Dutch Leonard will probably pitch for the Red Sox.

That the Red Sox have discovered a brilliant young pitcher in George Foster is prediction handed out by fe ow players and members of the Browns after the great exhibition yesterday.

Foster didn't do a lot for eight and one-third innings and not until Hooper Williams singled in the ninth with one out, did the Browns even hit a hard ball.

A peculiar part of it, is that Foster was a member of the Browns when Jack O'Connor was manager in the spring of 1910 he had Foster with the southern training trip. Then the kid was raw and green and didn't show enough to be retained. He drifted about for several years but now looks to be [illegible] manager of the Browns didn't [illegible] or hit, so not [illegible] watched the youth [illegible] and saw every pitch from the bench. Just kid is going to be a star," remarked Stovall.

The best part about his exhibition was not at he was cool and steady at all times. He didn't become nervous, and once when Williams got his hit he took his game about pitching.

I wish I had him on my club now. Foster will be a tower of strength to the Red Sox if he can keep up the kind of pitching. Of course he can't be expected to pitch a double game, all the time out with a title something he will also his mark in the American League

STERLING ALE
First in Quantity because First in Quality

Right here in Boston, we brew more ale than any other American brewer.

Right here in Boston, we believe we brew the best ale in America,—an ale the equal of any in the world.

To brew the most, in itself, is not hugely important. But to brew both the best and the most is a mighty significant thing.

For when popular demand places a brew first in quantity, because it is first in quality, then the brewers may well take pride in a thing worth while.

WE do take pride in the recognition a discerning public has accorded Sterling Ale.

With that pride goes keen sense of responsibility.

Only so long as we do brew the best,—only so long as we keep the public's faith in us and in our good brew, by ourselves keeping faith with the public,—will we continue to brew the most.

IN that fact is something for us, and something for you.

For us, knowledge that continued business success depends on maintaining our brewing standards, and allowing nothing to impair the quality of Sterling Ale.

For you, assurance that every interest of ours lies in insuring to you today the same satisfaction which Sterling Ale has given you in the past.

When you choose your beverage, your stake is your nickel. When we ask you to choose Sterling, our stake is the reputation of an ale brew which outranks all others in sales. What better guarantee can we give you than to put our stake against yours?

That is what we do every day when we put our blue and white trademark on Sterling Ale, and say to you:

LITTLE LOST SISTER — By Virginia Brooks

A Story of the Author's Own Experiences in Chicago's Underworld

What Has Gone Before:

The opening chapters of Virginia Brooks' striking story of the underworld, "Little Lost Sister," contain the author's explanation of methods employed by white slavers of the System to entrap young girls in cities and country towns everywhere.

Miss Brooks unfolds her adventures as a waitress in a downtown cafe, depicts herself as a clerk in a big department store and gives her experience with the girls employed at the "doll" counter. Then follows a pathetic recital of a little hungry girl's fight to earn an honest living.

One chapter is devoted to the "Cafe Sinister," which is a girl-trap, and another to the "Segregated Home." The Bexelwaum Ball is described and "Queer Fish in the Depths."

Today's installment tells of "The Scarlet Wedding Dress."

Now Go on with the Story

CHAPTER IX.

The Scarlet Wedding Dress

THIS is the story of what happened to Trefalka Grsiak, who is dead now. When I first knew her two years ago she was a dear, soft-hearted little thing with a pretty face and figure. She loved a man named Steve Blecsak.

They had been sweethearts, these two, ever since the old days in school, and they were graduated together from the schoolhouse into the factory.

When big, muscular Steve used to show up in the work room Trefalka's eyes shone and her cheeks flushed. Then she used to shake the heavy dark curls down round her face to hide her confusion. Oh, yes, Trefalka was very much in love with Steve.

One night after her work was over Trefalka ran into my house.

"What do you think I got?" she gasped out.

"Tell me," I smiled.

"Look!" laughed Trefalka.

The child extended her hand for my inspection, and upon it was a ring set with the tiniest diamond I ever saw.

Trefalka's eyes were sparkling and she breathed rapidly in her excitement.

"Ain't it class?" babbled the child. "Oh, ain't it a jim dandy—no, ain't it a Joe Hunt?" she went on. "Dear, me and Steve's goin' to be married. His pa's goin' to give us a lot, an' he's going to get the building loan to lend us money. Then we'll have the house, and it's all planned."

I never saw any girl so happy as Trefalka. She cried one minute and laughed the next, and she made me promise that I would be there when she was married, because I had always been her best friend. How I wish I could have sustained my title to that office.

How About Wedding Dress?

"Trefalka, dear," I interposed, "what about your wedding dress? It will be something white, of course, and will you carry flowers and have a dance afterward?"

The girl's face fell.

"Pa's drunk again," she whispered. "There ain't a cent in the bank. My money from the factory goes for eating. Pa always makes me give him all my money."

"You must tell him you are to be married," I urged, "and perhaps he will let you save for your wedding things."

"No," she said, sadly, "I have to give it to him, or we'd all get beat up. Anyway, all the girls does it that stays home. I don't care about giving them the money if I could just get the wedding, too. The dress, you know, will take $15, and the other things $10. I think I could get everything for $30—the things to eat and drink, and everything like that."

I made up my mind that Trefalka must have her things to be married in, poor thing, but the date slipped my memory, and I shall never cease to regret it.

"Steve quit his job in the factory," volunteered Trefalka. "He says it wasn't very genteel. Steve is awful proud."

The girl was wanting comfort. She was afraid for Steve, I thought.

"What is he doing now?" I asked.

"In one of them skating rink places at South Chicago," she answered. "Say, the girls are swell—big willow plumes and such skirts and waists—all silk. He likes that, Steve does. And I haven't got nothing. I shame myself with Steve."

Then the storm broke. Trefalka buried her curly head in my lap and cried her heart out. The little body shook with great heaving sobs. It was long before I could calm her.

"Don't you worry about Steve," I said. "If he can be won away from you by a sleazy silk skirt, you don't want him anyhow."

"But I do!" she raged. "By G——, you women in America ain't got no hearts for men," she stormed. "I want Steve!"

And who could blame the child for wanting to look her best before the man she loved? Wasn't it human—wasn't it the best of the woman in her?

Comes Back to Confess

Poor Trefalka! Her crying ceased. She wiped her eyes, grasped my hand tightly and went away to her home. Poor little girl—such a home! You can't wonder at anything that happens when a girl with a hungry heart must betake herself to filthy quarters filled with crying babies, a drunken father and a quarrelsome mother. Rather a hard place to turn to in an extremity.

Two weeks later there was a knock at the door. I threw it open, and there, under the flickering porch light, stood Trefalka.

"Trefalka!" I cried. "Oh, Trefalka!"

The little body, swathed in a cheap satin gown, swayed forward.

"She had a ring set with the tiniest of diamonds."

I put my arm around the girl and led her in. She was painted and her eyebrows were grotesquely pencilled.

"I guess you know," she began, just above a whisper.

"Why did you?" I interposed.

"Well," she shivered, "it's down to what they call Joe Howard's joint. It was Kitty out to the factory took me down. She keeps company with Dan, the bar fly."

"But you know better than to go there!" I answered sternly. "You knew what sort of place it was."

"Well, I didn't know it was so crazy as that," the girl went on. "That barkeep is the hoarse guy that swiped Kitty's lockets—you know, him that was pinched for bringing girls from Indiana to a fake weddin'. I told Kitty about Steve and says I couldn't get married because I didn't have no weddin' dress, and Kitty says: 'Falka, why don't you come to Howard's with me, because you can make enough in a week to get the dress and things. You can work down there until 12 at night and then get back to your shack.'

Invited to Come and See

"So I asked her what I could make steady and she says it could be $8 a night and $15 on Saturdays. She tells me its grand—all lace curtains and a nickel planner and all the things you want to drink. 'If you don't believe me,' says Kitty, 'come an' see for yourself.'

"So that night I went home early from work and got the supper for the kids. Pa was awful mean to me. I asked him if he could do something for my weddin' and he says, 'To —— with weddin's. Take the vinegar jug and chase me some booze,' and that's all he says to me.

"Then ma says to pa not to get no more booze, and pa says for her to shut up, because he's going to do the talking round the place, and ma says something to him, so he tries to hit ma with a chair and ma ducked and the chair hit the door and come back on pa's head. Then ma cried an' was on her knees on the floor.

"'Falka,' she says, 'your pa's gone an' died on us.'

"I took a look at pa and he was all bloody, but I didn't care, anyway. 'He won't die for a long time, anyhow,' I told ma, and then I ran out and met Kitty. I was cryin' and Kit says, 'What the ——'s the use bawlin'. Come on down to Joe's.'

"So that's how I come to go."

I took Trefalka in my room and washed the paint off her face. That process revealed a very pale and drawn-looking child. Kitty had tried to bleach her hair with peroxide, but I was glad the solution had been too weak. Trefalka's hair was still unspoiled.

"I got the money for the dress," whispered the girl, shiveringly, "but I'd rather work in a factory and get $3 a week. That Howard joint is some fierce place. They got a cash register just like in a wine room, and what you got to do is to get the fellers tanked so they'll spend all they got on 'em. They rings it all up in the register, and the girls gets a per cent. on the checks. Some o' the girls thinks it's fun, but it ain't. I know Carrie that works in the factory. She works down there, too. Her husband lets her work at night, and he calls for her at 12. If she ain't got a good deal of money he beats her up, because he thinks she's givin' some of her money to a guy or something like that.

"Phil, that looks after the rooms, he says to us girls in there: 'Get the rolls; don't forget it's pay night.'

"Say, when a guy's drunk and doped you dassen't leave a nickel in his pockets. If you do, they're down on you."

Steve Knows and Quits

"Trefalka," I said, "how can you marry Steve now?"

"Steve knows," she snapped, "to —— with him. He wouldn't believe me why I did it. Tonight he found it out."

There was an awful look in the child's face. She seemed to have just found how she had been cheated. Her eyes were swollen and heavy with much weeping.

"I don't care," she went on, and then the next instant wailed: "Oh! My God! Missus, yes, I do care. I love Steve and I want him. But Steve knows now, and he's quit. I was sittin' in the back room there with four o' them girls, an' there was some fellers that was buyin' beer. Helen that used to work in the factory was there, an' I was watchin' her sniffin flakes.

"Then two more fellers come in, and they looked in our room. I stood up with my hands and feet frose and shiverin' all over.

"'Steve! I says. 'Wait, Steve, I'll tell you all about it.'

"'You!' Steve says, and then he laughed. You —— ——,' Steve says to me, and I tried to get hold of him to make him talk to me, but it wasn't no good. He hit me right here, an' I fell down."

Trefalka pushed down the shoulder of her nearsilk waist and showed me a livid bruise on her white flesh.

"I come to quick, but when I did Steve was gone, and he won't never come back," moaned the little girl. She was rocking backward and forward in an agony of distress.

"Trefalka," I said, "you must find Steve and let me talk to him. I believe I can make him take care of you. He did love you, didn't he?"

To Get Wedding Finery

"Oh," moaned Trefalka, "I know he won't come back. I just begged him. 'Steve,' I said, 'for God's sake, don't throw me down, Steve.' When he took his ring off'n me I just hung to him and told him I'd work all my life, if he'd just let me show him I was white and not to take my ring, but he wouldn't have no truck with me—he just wouldn't have no truck with me. And I just did it to get a weddin' dress so I wouldn't shame him—he was so proud."

If any of the women I know who are stern judges of other people's morals could have sat with me and watched that helpless Little Lost Sister, her hands stretched out empty toward me, tears streaming down her face, I am sure they must have wept, too.

"Trefalka, tomorrow we'll go and find Steve," I said. "I'll go and help you."

"Sure, I'll come," she assented and was gone.

The door closed after her, but I looked out quickly. She was not going in the direction of her home. In an instant I had a cape thrown over my shoulders and was following her. I knew where she was going now. Steve was in South Chicago. She was going there. Trefalka sat in the front of the street car with her head bowed down. She did not see me. At last we reached the skating rink.

End of Their Tragedy

"As I reached the corner I waited an instant. The skaters were pouring out of the door. The calliope that had been screeching out a discordant refrain was still.

The last couple turned past the corner. I could see Steve's big frame outlined against the flapping shade as he reached to put out the lights one after another.

"Do you think any fellow wants to marry you?"

I stepped forward to plead with him that he forgive her the sin of which he himself was guilty—to tell him Trefalka didn't understand, and that it was really all for him. That instant Trefalka darted past me, breathless, her eyes glittering fiercely. She was past the door and by his side just as he reached for the last light.

"Steve," she cried, tensely—"Steve, dear—are you goin' to do what you said? Are you goin' to throw me down?" she cried.

"Didn't I tell you to git out, you —— ——? Do you think any fellow wants to marry the like of you?" His face hardened and an ugly scowl lay upon it.

"Steve, don't you see, it was the weddin' dress, the money? Them girls did it, Kitty and Helen—they say it's all right." She fell on her knees before him. Her arms embraced him.

"Let me alone," he said. "I'm done." He shoved her off roughly.

Trefalka sprang to her feet. There was a gleam in the air, a cry of pain. Steve's bulky frame sank to the floor. Before I could cry out Trefalka had thrown herself full length upon his body. Her mouth found his. Then the knife was in her heart, too.

I cried for help. An officer made his way through the crowd. The lights flared up. There they lay, Steve and Trefalka—dying, his arm had found her waist and held her close.

FRECKLE-FACE

Sun and Wind Bring Out Ugly Spots; How to Remove Easily.

Here's a chance, Miss Freckle-Face, to try a remedy for freckles, with the guarantee of a reliable dealer that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes the freckles; while if it does give you a clear complexion the expense is trifling.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength—from any of the Hilker-Jaynes drug stores, and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine, as this is the prescription sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

WHY RESINOL SOAP KEEPS COMPLEXIONS CLEAR AND HEALTHY

When you wash your face do you realize that it is not enough to remove the dirt—that your skin needs a soothing, healing influence to keep your complexion fresh and free from blemish?

Ordinary toilet soaps do not assert this influence. Many of them contain free alkali which tends to dry the skin, and destroy its delicate texture. Even the best of such soaps can only clean, they cannot heal and protect the skin. Resinol Soap, besides being an absolutely pure toilet soap contains the same soothing, healing, antiseptic balsams as Resinol Ointment, the value of which in the treatment of skin affections is known throughout the medical profession. That is why Resinol Soap does for the skin what creams are supposed to do, it does not only clean skin, but a healthy skin, and a fair clear complexion, more, and Resinol Ointment are sold by all druggists. Trial free. Dept. 6-R, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

Be Good-Natured!

The sugar-coated tablets called Dys-pep-lets will help you to be so, if indigestion, sour stomach, gas in the stomach, heartburn or nausea makes you otherwise.

They combine the most effective and agreeable digestives, carminatives and correctives and are worthy of your entire confidence.

Prepared by C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass. Sold by all druggists, at 10c., 25c., 50c. or $1. Get a box today.

The Test of Love

A THRILLING SHORT STORY, COMPLETE

CARNIVAL at Nice, the streets are filled with gay, merrymaking crowds, though it is already late. Charles de Neuville was the only one who did not seem to care to take part in the gaiety, despite the fact that his maid here for the beautiful Princess Marina Sergejeff was returned by her.

It was barely two weeks since he had met her the first time. At the exceedingly youthful age of fifteen she had been married to Prince Sergejeff and was now one of the most famous beauties in Europe. Charles de Neuville had never met the Princess either in Paris or Nice. He only knew that at present Prince Sergejeff was supposed to be living on his estate in Russia and that during his absence the Princess had granted him a rendezvous at her palatial villa.

Charles walked through the garden and entered the Princess' apartment on the ground floor, where Marina had promised to wait for him. It was the first time he had seen this room and he was surprised at the luxurious Oriental rugs and curtains and the priceless works of art. On one wall was a life-size painting of a man of about forty, a giant with a fierce mustache and the body of a trained athlete, the immense strength of the man, being evident even in spite of the dark green Russian uniform. The eyes were peculiarly fascinating in their mixture of kindness and sternness. A man among a million.

Charles was in no doubt that this was a picture of the prince, and, spoiled though he was, he had to admit to his handsome self that most women would not have a chance for him in the presence of the prince.

Princess Marina saw the impression the portrait made on his visitor, with a smile.

QUITE SAFE

"He looks rather fierce, does he not?" she said. And as if she had guessed her visitor's thought she added: "We are quite safe here. I have sent all the servants to the carnival."

Charles felt vastly relieved. Kneeling down before the Princess he whispered passionately: "I love you. I adore you. If you were to tell me you would come with me I would leave everything for your sake. If you asked me to kill your husband I would do it. If you asked for my own life I would lay it down for you gladly."

She interrupted him.

"Women alone understand how to love."

"No! No!" he cried, "I could make any sacrifice for your sake." He kissed his arms about her and kissed her. She pushed him gently away, put her finger on her lips and whispered: "Somebody is coming through the garden." At the same time she switched off the light. Both stretched their ears to catch the slightest sound.

Suddenly there was a noise as if somebody were cautiously inserting a key in a lock and opening a door.

"The servants are coming back sooner than I expected," said Marina. "They are looking up the house, but nobody has seen you. We had better go to my apartment on the floor above."

"Pardon a thousand times," he suggested. "We will not be able to talk any more anyway." He went to the window to open it and got out into the garden, but found the shutters outside closed tightly.

"My husband has given orders that all shutters must be locked every night," Marina said.

"How will I get away then?"

"Come to my room. There is a strong vine on lattice work down the outside wall."

TRAPPED

They went to the door, but found it locked from without.

"We are lost" she cried. "None of the servants has done that. Somebody has locked us up here on purpose."

"Who?"

"Silence!" she whispered. "Perhaps somebody is listening outside the door."

She drew him away from the door and after a moment of dreadful suspense the key was turned quietly, the door was opened and a tall man entered. At the first glance Charlie recognized the prince.

The prince, however, did not seem to notice him at all, but stared at his wife and spoke a few sentences in Russian. Marina threw herself down before him and uttered a few broken words, but he turned on his heels and left the room, locking the door behind him.

"What did he say? What does he intend to do," cried Charles in agony of suspense.

"He says he must have either your life or mine. We are to decide ourselves. In five minutes he will return to kill one of us. You understand—either you or I."

Charles' heart seemed to stop beating, but he made an effort to appear calm.

"But we are not in Russia," he said, "we are not at his mercy here in France, whose laws protect us. He will not dare kill either of us. He only wants to scare us."

"You do not know him," she said. "He will dare anything in his present mood. He once had one of his servants knouted to death because he dared contradict him."

Charles tore up and down the floor like a caged beast.

"Then we must defend ourselves. We must cry for help."

ONLY ONE WAY

"Defend ourselves? With what? There is nobody in the house but ourselves."

"Then we must try to burst the shutters to get away."

He threw his whole weight against the heavy shutters, but in vain.

"You or I," said Marina.

"I?" he cried furiously. "You, you alone are to blame for this. You knew the risks you exposed me to when you asked me to come here. You enticed me into this trap."

"As if you had not begged me a thousand times. Then you do not love me. You love only my riches."

"And you! What do you love? My youth, my passionate temperament?"

"I set everything aside because I loved you."

"And you expect me to believe you. I am probably not the first one."

She sat on the divan looking at him with an expression of the deepest contempt, while he ran around looking for a hiding place.

The door was opened once more and Sergejeff entered with a revolver in his hand.

"Who is it to be?" he said quietly.

Charles hid himself behind Marina.

"Spare me," he cried. "I am innocent. I did not know she had a husband. Your Highness, I shall never look at her again."

At this moment the Princess arose and raised her hand.

"That is enough," she said.

The man immediately lowered the revolver and walked to the door, humbly bowing his head.

"What does this mean?" cried Charles.

"It means that you have proved yourself a hypocrite and a coward. You swore you loved me more than anything in the world, and I wanted to test you. I have been a widow for nearly a year, and I ordered my servant to disguise himself as my late husband, who was the best and kindest of men. Now I know the quality of your love, you despicable coward. Leave this room immediately."

He tried to explain, but she cut him short, pointing to the door, which opened showing two muscular servants standing like statues.

Without another word Charles de Neuville sneaked out.

Up-to-Date Jokes

A former vicar of a country parish not far from Sheffield was a gentleman distinguished for his learning and for the position he took at Cambridge. One day a visitor to the village got into conversation with one of the parishioners, and the talk turned to the vicar.

"Your clergyman," said the visitor, "is a very able man. Why, he is a Wrangler."

"I never heard that," was the reply of the villager; "but his minds is."

A chronic dyspeptic was staying with a friend, and when the two were out for a walk one morning he said to his host: "I took a couple of tablespoonfuls of salt water from the sea yesterday, and thought I derived benefit from it. Do you think I might take some more?"

"Well," replied the host, "I don't think a couple more would be missed."

Hoist with His Own Petard

"I'm afraid," said the inspector, "that children are not so observant as they used to be."

"You think so?" asked the teacher. "I haven't noticed it."

"No? Then I will prove it to you. Now," he continued, turning to the class, "some one give me a number."

"Thirty-seven," a little girl exclaimed eagerly.

The inspector wrote "73" on the board. Nothing was said.

"Now," he added, "some one give me another number."

"Fifty-seven!" said a little voice at the back of the room.

The inspector wrote "75" on the board, and smiled in a superior way at the teacher when nothing was said. Then he called for a third number, but fairly gasped when a little urchin piped:

"Seventy-seven—and see if you can write that backward!"

Thinking of Himself.

Two Irish soldiers stationed in the West Indies were accustomed to bathe daily in a little bay which was generally supposed to be free from sharks. Though on good terms with each other, they were not what might be called fast friends.

One day as they were swimming about one hundred yards from shore, Pat observed Mike suddenly making for the land as hard as he could without saying a word. Wondering what was the matter, Pat struck out vigorously after him, and landed at his companion's heels.

"Is there anything wrong wid ye?" inquired Pat, feelingly.

"Nothing—nothing at all," replied the other.

"Then what did yo make sich a sudden rotrate for an' lave me?" continued Pat.

"Bedad," answered Mike, coolly, "I spied the fin of a big shark about twenty feet ahead, an' I thought while he was playin' wid you it wud give he time to reche the shore!"

How to Kill Time

WITH her small nose pressed against the screen door, the small neighbor looked wistfully into the grown-up neighbor's kitchen.

"Come out and play with me," she coaxed. "There isn't a soul of a person to play with me at my house. My daddy's gone to town and my mother's gone to town and my grandmother's sewing me a dress and Hilda's making bread. Can't you come out and play?"

"I'm afraid I can't just now," responded the grown-up neighbor. "I'm busy myself. But you can come in and talk to me while I work."

The small neighbor opened the door and skipped in with alacrity.

"Why aren't you at school?" inquired the grown-up neighbor as the door slammed behind her visitor.

The small neighbor gave an embarrassed wriggle. "Well," she said, "this morning when I first got up—I mean when I first didn't get up, you know—I didn't feel very well. My head ached something fierce. So my mother she said if I kept on not feeling well I didn't need to go to school. I stayed in bed till she went to town and then I didn't go to school."

"I'm glad you're feeling better," said the grown-up neighbor, sympathetically. "I suppose in a little while you'll be entirely recovered."

"I shouldn't be surprised," agreed the small neighbor.

She cheerfully dipped into the open flour box one small hand, over which there was a slightly brownish film, as though it might previously have been dipped into a mud pie.

"I guess I'll goin to the other room and play my new piece."

"Do," urged the grown-up neighbor, cordially.

The small neighbor disappeared and presently the strains of the new "piece" could be heard from the living room. In a few moments the musician returned.

The small neighbor reflected. Do you remember," she said, finally, "that once when I was here you made candy?"

The grown-up neighbor admitted that she did remember the occasion. The smell one thereupon smiled up at her sweetly and ingenuously. "Do you know," she said, "that I can remember how good that candy tasted?"

"Am I to gather from that remark," smiled the grown-up neighbor, "that you would like to make some candy now?"

"I think I would," responded the other.

"I'm afraid," said the grown-up neighbor, seriously, "that the candy was on the stove and the small visitor was standing on her tiptoes to watch it bubble. That the awful accusation made against me is true."

The small neighbor's eyes grew very large and round. "What?" she asked.

"Well, you know there is a story going the rounds to the effect that you're getting badly spoiled by me."

"Spoiled like apples?" inquired the small neighbor. "All brown and wrinkled and soft so you can stick your finger into them?"

"Well, you're not brown and wrinkled, and I don't believe I could stick my finger into you."

"Well, then, I don't mind being spoiled," chirped the small one. "I guess I like it." Then she threw her arms around her friend's neck. "Do you know," she whispered, "I'd rather stay here and play with you than go to my school I ever went to in all my whole life."

The grownup neighbor gave her a severe hug. "I'm simply flattered to death," she declared.

The Modern Marriage

Is It Divine or Human? A Contract or an Agreement? The Cause of Divorce

(It may be asked why I, of all men, should write upon questions affecting marriage and other relations. In reply, I would say that one who has gone through what I have, suffered as much as I have, and seen so much of the world and its hard side, may possibly have something to say that will be of use to others. I hope so, at least. —JERR K. COOKE.)

By JERR K. COOKE

"WHOM God hath joined together let no man put asunder."

In the last twenty years more than a MILLION divorces have been granted in this country alone. An average of FIFTY THOUSAND each year. Seventy-three divorces for every hundred thousand people. "To have and to hold till death us do part."

Two women to one man of these fifty thousand break this vow. The man principally charges adultery. The woman rests here on cruelty. Desertion is the common ground. Numberless reasons are given by these unhappy people, and they catch at a reason as a drowning man grasps at a straw.

Temperamental incompatibility would tell the story. Two hearts that are supposed to beat as one "jangle like sweet bells out of tune."

There is no law on earth, there are no words of magistrate or minister, priest or prelate which can compel a man to love his wife or to enjoy her society.

Neither is there legal force that can make a woman respect her husband or find pleasure in his presence. It is the shame of manhood that it is possible to become a bride.

In modern marriage all the primitive traits of the cave-men period appear.

Area upon area of evolution, age upon age of cultivation, and even the softening influence of Christianity have failed to eliminate the brute in the male, or the feline in the female. In a wild passion of angry modern man, like his cave ancestor, man-handles his spouse.

The passions of rage, jealousy, suspicion, temper and violence burst like billows over the rocks of civilization and culture, and the man, old in modern raiment is the brother to the uncouth savage clothed in skins.

CRUELTY PLAYS A PART

Cruelty plays a large part in divorce.

Twenty-seven men in every hundred have been intolerably cruel to their wives. The gentler sex has a better record, for only ten in one hundred are Amazons who have "beaten up" their lords.

"The covenant betwixt them made" is soon forgotten and the reasons for the severing of the divine knot are often reasonable to ridiculous.

Everything is "cause" from the shadow of the seventh commandment to the scent of cigars on the breath of a late-coming husband.

Divorce has come to be more than an evil. It is a plague.

Statistics show an appalling condition. Twenty-eight wives in 100 divorces have gone astray. The modern expressions "soul mate" and "affinity" have disgusted a long suffering public and have degenerated to become synonyms of passion, infatuation and animal desire.

The sages are working on the problem as to which sex is at fault, the male or the female—the husband or his wife.

When the Divine Moulder was fashioning his clay after thought, his supreme effort was woman. She was a bit of the best clay from man's side that lay close to his heart. It is the shame of her sex that she should stoop to cougar. There are too many women who bank on the natural respect man has for her sex to impose upon him, to "double cross" him

The "double cross" is the commonest monument in the cemetery of domestic infelicity and marks many a matrimonial grave.

A CIVIL CONTRACT

Marriage is, besides being a divine institution, a civil contract in which the party of the first part and the party of the second part promise and agree to do certain specified things and to refrain from doing certain other things which are reasonable in a contract. A whim or fancy is not a release, and the only dissolution is through the door of legal process.

I have married and seen a great many persons joined together, and every one of them impressed me at the time as being duly impressed and truly serious and honest in their vows and troth, each to the other.

Yet the first couple I married were divorced within a year. Each was temperamentally the antipodes of the other, and they were not working to give or take, bear and forbear.

The divorce court seemed the only solution of their woes.

Right thinking people deplore that the divorce court is a necessity—its good is mixed with a great deal of harm. It is too often sought and too lightly held. Like poison, it should be taken advisedly and in the minutest quantities.

It is deadly as well as dangerous, and the strict stand of the church and clergy is its safeguard.

Extinguished!

In a private sitting room at the hotel sat a party of merrymakers.

Suddenly there came a knock at the door, and an attendant, entering in a great hurry, announced:

"The compliments of Mr. ——, the author, who is in the next room, and he says you are making so much noise that he cannot write."

"He can't, eh?" said one of the brightest of the party. "Why, tell him everybody who has read his books knows that."

Assumption

Mrs. M. left the house for a few moments one morning, telling little Hazel to answer the door bell if necessary. Presently there was a ring. The lady caller opened her credence, and to doing so a bit of tissue paper fluttered to the steps.

Picking it up, Hazel remarked:

"Mith, you dropped one of your thigarette paperth."

FORBES URGES PUBILCITY FOR CORPORATIONS

By B. C. FORBES.
Business Editor of the American.

Do investors propose to allow directors and other insiders to go on indefinitely pocketing money from information which ought not to be monopolized, but shared with the real owners of the company, the stockholders? Is the one-sided, loaded dice, taking-candy-from-the-children game to be sanctioned forever? Are the public to sit with idle hands and let insiders wax fat while ordinary security holders kept in the dark, grow poorer?

As a first step, quarterly reports should be insisted upon.

And the punishment for wilfully misleading statements should be imprisonment, not fines, which directors would either take from their companies' treasuries or collect a thousand times over from speculative deals made possible by their dim-damming.

A Comfortable and Happy Trip to California, in Good Company and at Very Small Cost

A wonderfully interesting trip, go-party in charge of a well-informed conductor who goes all the way through and is paid for his ability to relieve you of care and make you "feel at home."

A wonderfully interesting trip, going through Colorado and Salt Lake City. A thousand wonders to see.

A wonderfully comfortable trip, made in a Pullman Tourist Sleeping car. Clean as wax, and the price of all so small that most anybody can go.

Just call or write and let me tell you all about the Personally Conducted, low fare parties to California that have helped to make the "Burlington Route" service famous.

LATEST FROM TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

Stock markets were dull at the start and in New York the price tendency was downward. Locally there was irregularity. Boston & Maine rose a point and New Haven declined one. There was neither business or price changes of consequence in the case of most mining issues.

At the end of an hour in New York, with trading very slack, almost every prominent issue was fractionally lower. Southern Pacific was an exception, being a shade higher. The price range in Union Pacific, Steel, Reading, Canadian Pacific, Amalgamated, American Can and other leaders was narrow.

Early New York Prices Decline.

When the New York market opened it was a weaker tone and fears that conductors and trainmen on Eastern roads will press claims for wage increases aggregating $17,000,000 and refuse to accept federal intervention had a depressing influence.

It is reported from Europe that Austria is viewing critically proposed Russian intervention in the Balkans," but there was some uncertainty in London and other capitals abroad just as to how the war situation stands. Foreign traders were also concerned over reports from this country concerning the labor situation here.

Among early declines in New York were Amalgamated ⅜; Canadian Pacific ⅝; American Car & Foundry ½; American Telephone & Telegraph ¼; Southern Pacific ¼, Steel common ⅝; China ⅜; Northern Pacific ⅝, and Union Pacific ¼. Advances included Erie ¼; Reading ⅛; Atchison ⅛, and New York Central ¼. The last named stock soon turned weak, declining ¼. The Curb was dull and easy.

Americans in London were quiet above New York parity.

Delay Currency Legislation.

The majority of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee are opposed to haste in enacting a new currency bill, several Democrats taking that stand with Republicans. Chairman Owen has abandoned his plan to begin meetings today and to continue them daily until the measure is reported to the Senate. It is understood that the majority of the committee are opposed to consideration of the great questions involved in reforming the country's currency system while Congress also has revision of the tariff on its hands. They believe that one of two such big jobs is enough to handle at a time.

After the committee adjourned Senator Owen said that the committee had agreed to defer action until its members could study suggestions made to it by bankers and financial experts who had answered the questions he had propounded some time ago.

Meanwhile the House committee has the measure under consideration, and it is believed in Washington that the administration bill will be reported in the House late this month or early in the next one.

One Change in the Bill.

Secretary McAdoo has proposed and Chairman Carter Glass has assented, it is said, to elimination from the currency bill of Section No. 18, which restricts national banks to issues of bank notes not in excess of the total amount outstanding at the time of the passage of the bill, and the diminution of such bank notes under withdrawals cannot be made up by new issues of bank notes. Government notes will have to be taken out in their place by the banks.

The law, as originally drafted, provided compulsory retirement of bank notes in twenty years, and was intended to make the retirement of bank notes permissible. The section to be eliminated was a part of the bill requiring the compulsory retirement of bank notes.

It is feared that should it remain in the bill under the permissible scheme its effect will be to decrease circulation, while the plan of the bill is to provide for an increased and elastic currency.

Republicans Have a Policy.

Senator Smooth voiced the opinion of many of his party in Congress when he said:

"It will be impossible to enact currency legislation at this session, and I do not think it will be seriously attempted. If need be, the President might call Congress together November 1, or we might take a recess until then. Nothing will be accomplished by attempting to keep Congress here when everybody is worn out with the tariff debate."

He said, however, that Republicans did not intend to oppose tariff legislation by adopting dilatory tactics. They will protest against lowering duties and defend the Republican policy, but let the Democratic majority pass the bill and let the people judge of the measure by its results.

London Copper Quotations.

The London copper warrants market opened with an easy tone, spot being off 5s, and futures 6s. 3d. lower.

From the action of big producers in lowering price demands in London it looks as if they had decided they could not get business without concessions. The report of a decrease in surplus stocks caused no demand on part of consumers. After waiting a day to judge the effect of the June figures, the Amalgamated agency in London, it is said in New York, "came down to 14⅞ cents, while the cabled price of the American Smelting and Refining Company was held to be 14¾ cents. Other producers named prices down to 14⅝ cents a pound. There was an improved inquiry for copper, but actual orders were scarce. One producer said he would be willing to do business on a 14½ cent basis.

"The trade had a report that the larger producers had been selling copper during the last few days around 14⅝@14¾ cents a pound. None of this was effected through European agents, who in turn sold the metal to American consumers, although the latter were not aware that they were really buying from producing interests in a roundabout way.

"Fifteen cents for copper has been a nominal price for the Amalgamated and American Smelting and Refining Company agencies have been selling under that figure."

Financial News in Brief.

Erie's gross earnings for the fiscal year ending with June are estimated at $62,000,000 and net as being around $16,000,000. It is estimated that about 3 per cent. was earned on outstanding common stock.

It was disclosed at a London city corporation meeting that 24 per cent. of the "roast beef of Old England" bought at Smithfield, London's biggest market, was supplied by American producers.

Idle freight cars on June 30 totaled 65,704, a decrease of 223 cars from June 14, according to the American Railway Association bulletin.

During the fiscal year which ended on June 30, Baltimore & Ohio's gross revenue exceeded $100,000,000, and was the greatest total the road has ever known.

It is understood that new business now being received by the United States Steel Corporation ranges between 20,000 and 25,000 tons a day, and that shipments are about twice as large as the total of new orders received. Wells mills are running on full time, it is reported from Pittsburgh, "a number of furnaces will soon go out of commission for repairs."

The New York sub-treasury gained $125,000 from banks on Thursday, and since Saturday has gained $13,491,000.

Watterson Sees Wilson Success

"Both His Luck and Nerve Stay by Him," Says Colonel.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Colonel Henry M. Watterson, editor of "The Louisville Courier Journal," stopped over in New York long enough yesterday to comment pithily on various national questions, including the prospects for success of the Democratic administration and the possible future candidacy for president of Colonel Roosevelt.

"The chances are all in favor of the success of President Wilson's administration," Colonel Watterson is quoted as saying. "Both his luck and his nerve stay by him."

Colonel Roosevelt, according to the editor, will never again be a formidable factor in politics.

"No man can tell what Theodore Roosevelt will do next," he is quoted as saying. "He has reached the top of the hill. Henceforth, he will be going down the other side."

Malden Man Seeks Part of $45,000,000

John S. Nickerson of No. 342 Ferry street, Malden, is going to Tentally, N. J., to contest the probating of the will of the late John S. Lyle, who died recently at the age of ninety-six, leaving practically all his $45,000,000 estate to his twenty-nine-year-old wife, at one time his nurse.

Daniels Urges Son to Emulate Perry

ERIE, Pa., July 11.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels was deeply affected by the gift of a gavel made from Commodore Perry's battle flagships. He said he would give it to his son, urging him to emulate the great naval hero.

RETRACTION IS GIVEN OUT BY NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Ct., July 11.—In response to a demand of Coroner John J. Phelan of Bridgeport that the New Haven road retract a statement put out by the press department in which it was stated that politicians were trying to influence the coroner in his investigation of the Stamford wreck to accuse high officials of the company, Edward G. Riggs, the New Haven road's press representative, has issued the following:

It is with unfeigned pleasure that I note a correction.

On information I issued on July 2 a bulletin headed: "Politicians at It Again. Urging Coroner Phelan to Fix Responsibility for Stamford Wreck on Officials."

The correctness of that bulletin has been questioned, and after a searching inquiry it gives me the greatest satisfaction to announce that the information in the first place was inaccurate and the only manly course is to admit the error and express regret for the inadvertence. It turns out as a result of this later investigation that Coroner Phelan has not been influenced by politicians and that politicians are not endeavoring to influence his decision in the matter of the investigation of the Stamford wreck.

(Signed) EDWARD G. RIGGS.

That it is not prudent for engineer of less than one year's actual road service on freight trains to be allowed to run local passenger trains and that through express trains should be handled by engineers of at least two years' experience who have passed frequent examination as to the physical characteristics of the road and all the rules; that all classes of employes in railroad service should be frequently questioned about their knowledge of rules and regulations, and only those fully qualified be allowed to assist in train operation; and that the distant signal at Stamford should be at least 2,500 feet from the home signal instead of 1,800 feet as at present, are the main "suggestions" of Chief Engineer C. C. Kiesel of the State Public Utilities Commission in his report of the wreck of June 12 at Stamford, issued at Hartford today.

BOSTON AMERICAN PRIZES FOR VACATION PHOTOS

The Boston AMERICAN is planning to offer prizes to amateur photographers for pictures taken at the beach, on the mountains or on the lakes.

The contest will begin July 13 and will close September 1. Full details will be announced later.

No wide experience with the camera is necessary to take part in this competition. The vacation resorts offer many interesting studies for the camera fiend, and an amateur's snap at some subject out of the ordinary, because of its unusual beauty or peculiar interest, will stand as much chance in the contest as the studied effort of an experienced operator.

Get in line, you camera fiends, and see what you can do!

FEAR HARVARD MAN IS VICTIM OF FOUL PLAY

A country-wide search has been started for Ralph V. Bunting, Harvard, '05, a Boston business man who disappeared from Portland, Me., June 28, and who, it is feared, may have met with foul play. Mr. Bunting registered at the Falmouth Hotel, Portland, on Saturday, June 28. That day he sent a letter and a postal card to his parents, in which he spoke of having shaved with a pleasant young man who was a stranger.

No other information of Bunting has reached his parents. It has been learned that Bunting took a steamboat trip in Portland harbor, dining at Cape Island. Late that afternoon he paid his bill at the Falmouth Hotel and disappeared.

The searchers visited practically every town on the Maine coast from Portland eastward.

Bunting lived at No. 64 Babcock street, Brookline. He is thirty years old, five feet six inches tall, of medium build, dark hair, light grayish eyes, clean shaven and sometimes wears eyeglasses. He wore a slight gray suit, stiff brimmed straw hat with black band, tan shoes and stockings, and carried a medium sized tan leather bag with the initials "R. V. B." on the end.

The bag contained a dressing case, having the same initials, and only sufficient clothing for a stay of a day or two. The purpose of his trip to Portland was for a short outing trip. He was tired from overwork.

WHAT IS GOOD TO EAT TODAY IN THE MARKET

Berries are less plentiful in the markets than the dealers had reason to expect by the early reports. Blackberries are coming from the South very slowly and sell for twenty cents a basket. Native blueberries are also scarce and the few that arrive in Boston sell for twenty-five cents a box. Raspberries are more plentiful and sell for fifteen cents a half box. Red currants sell for fifteen cents and white currants for eighteen cents a quart and there seems to be a big supply.

California fruits are coming east in increasing quantities, the most recent addition being Bartlett pears. Plums, apricots, cherries and peaches are coming in fast and sell for moderate prices. Fine canteloupes can be bought at three for a quarter and watermelons as low as twenty-five cents each.

There is still a fairly constant supply of mackerel at from twelve and one-half cents to forty cents. Swordfish sells for eighteen and twenty cents a pound. Fine chicken halibut sells for twenty-two cents a pound and good halibut for seventeen cents. Good Eastern salmon sells as low as twenty-five cents. Lobsters are scarce.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND, DAILY AND SUNDAY

The Defiant Robbery of the New Haven Stockholders, and the Remedy

How do the stockholders of the New Haven Railroad like the official information that, if the company had attended strictly to its railroad business, it could have paid a dividend of 8 per cent. for 1912, and carried 1¾ millions to surplus account instead of showing a deficit of nearly a million?

This should hit home, for it shows how the stockholders have been cheated. But to the great body of the public it is a minor detail of the Interstate Commerce Commission's unsparing condemnation of the management of this bribing and murdering monopoly.

In 9 years, 1903 to 1912, 204 millions of dollars spent in operations outside its railroad sphere! In 1903 a total capitalization of 93 millions and in 1912 of 417 millions, with an increase in operated mileage of only 50 miles!

More than 13 millions of dollars "given for nothing," the commission reports—for "water" in the stock of one of the several companies formed to acquire the Rhode Island trolleys and becloud the rascality in the purchase!

And 12 millions simply "vanished into thin air" over the building of the Westchester road, the difference between the alleged cost and the value of the road on the New Haven's own showing!

A hundred thousand dollars spent in "molding" the opinion of the Connecticut Legislature in the campaign to get hold of trolley lines in that State!

Between 2½ and 3 millions of dollars, again to quote the commission's report, "of the property of the New Haven Company given away to Mr. Billard and his associates or to the stockholders of the Billard Company—whatever that may be."

The methods of the company in its financial jugglings "circuitous and subterranean," its outside ventures almost all "prosecuted at a loss," and the bookkeeping relating to them such as "to utterly becloud these operations and render any intelligent understanding of them impossible!"

The AMERICAN has repeatedly shown how the New Haven has spent much less money in repair of its equipment and maintenance of track than any other railroad in the country comparing with it in density of traffic. While what one of its own superintendents called an "epidemic of wrecks" was murdering and maiming its patrons its directors and managers were busy debauching Legislatures, that of Massachusetts the last, and using its credit and resources by means of holding companies, and other devices of "high finance" to dispose of the plunder and profits so cunningly that even the Interstate Commerce Commission cannot trace them.

On June 16 last Mr. William R. Hearst wrote in this column:

"The course of this murderous and traitorous monopoly constitutes a case of your money AND your life AND your public honor.

"This monopoly of greed, without heart, or heed, or conscience, or civic spirit, robs its road in order that it may have money to bribe a Legislature, plunders the people in order that it may have power to strangle a State, murders its patrons as part of its treasonable plan to debauch the people's government.

"Is there in this whole country a more dangerous and destructive institution than this New York and New Haven monopoly, which makes money out of plunder and murder and uses it to undermine the very foundations of government and society?

"Mr. Mellen is but the instrument of Morgan & Co. and William Rockefeller. Are we to punish the instrument and allow the responsible individuals to escape?

"The American people have had enough of the brutal methods of the bandit under the cloak of business. * * * Let the punishment for theft and murder and political corruption be meted out in proportion to the profit made by those responsible for these crimes."

Critics of these remarks may well read this mournful sentence from the commission's report:

"IT IS UNFORTUNATE THAT THE WIDOWS AND ORPHANS MUST SUFFER. If the stockholders of these properties, instead of vilifying the critics of the New Haven, had given some attention to the charges made, their property would today be of greater value."

After urging several federal reforms in railroad control, of the highest importance, also the divorce of the New Haven from its trolley systems and from control of the Boston & Maine, the commission makes this humiliating confession:

"In the past the New Haven company has proceeded in open violation of some laws and in disregard of the spirit, if not the letter of others. * * * Any betterment of railroad conditions in New England must begin with the assurance that the New Haven management will act not only prudently but, above all, within the letter and the spirit of the law!"

The people of New England have no necessity to beg the New Haven pirates and train wreckers TO PLEASE OBEY THE LAW. They have the remedy in their own hands. If the stockholders are powerless to protect themselves, to send their robbers to the penitentiary, if the managers and promoters of this monopoly are ABOVE THE LAW, then let the people step in and show these marauders the source of all power in a democracy. As Mr. Hearst wrote in this newspaper on December 31, 1912:

"It becomes necessary for the people of this country in order to preserve their rights and opportunities and business advantages, not only to regulate, but TO OWN and participate in the conduct of such public service monopolies as are essential to their wellbeing.

"The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad situation is peculiarly favorable to governmental action of this kind. It is within the immediate power of the

Delivering the Goods

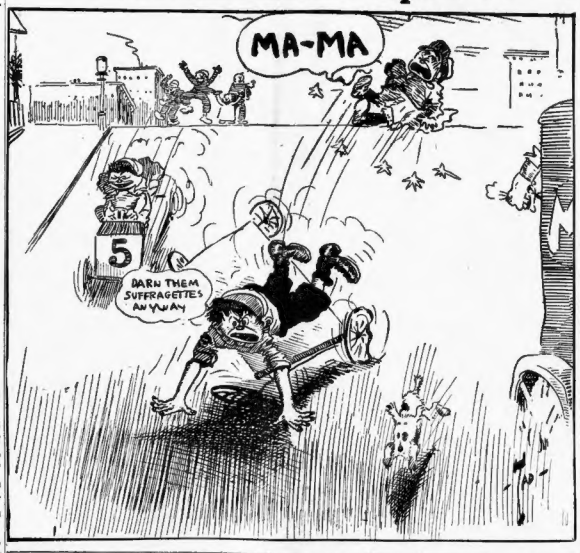
As long as the law can be used as a whip, so long brutal politicians will deliver helpless children to equally brutal employers. It is a "business bargain." The politician uses the law to drive in the children; the child labor employer pays him for his services. There is only one thing to do. Strengthen the law in every State in the Union and on the federal statute books, so that his criminal exploitation of children shall no longer be possible.

Another Race Spoiled



THE THIEF

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

I SAW them taking him away;
The old judge sentenced him today—
Ten years behind the walls of gray.

He did not shudder and implore,
As he had shuddered years before;
He snarled and spat upon the floor

The prison with its shadows grim
Had been a sort of home for him
Since he was young and starved and slim.

He cursed the great, the roaring town,
Where all he looked for was a frown.
He cursed the hounds who ran him down.

Ten years to mutter in a cell;
Ten years of stripes; ten years of hell—
And yet he whispered "It is well!"

Perchance he had an inkling dim
That in some world less gray and grim
Two thieves would intercede for him.

SHORE DUTY IN THE NAVY

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Sir—The letter of D. N., relative to the troubles of a married man in the navy, stamps him as an agitator.

In my eleven years' service in the navy, I have found that when a man conducts himself properly, and does his duty in an honest, conscientious manner, his superiors will do all in their power to further his interests.

D. N. does not say that until recently the U. S. S. Connecticut was in the New York Navy Yard, and that he was practically doing shore duty while on board that vessel.

It is true that there are single men in the Navy Yards and on shore stations, but they are men who have served in the navy for a sufficient period to merit this shore duty.

No clause in the oath taken by D. N. gave him any reason to expect the Navy Department to care for his family.

THOSE "PARTICULAR WORDS."

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Sir—Allow me, as an admirer of your patriotic journal, to endorse your recommendation of Mr. Lauterbach's "particular words" to the notice of the Bar Association of New York. I trust the suggestion put forward in your columns will be acted upon without delay.

Women Smokers—Smoking Is Serious Drawback to Equal Franchise, and in Addition Is One of the Greatest Beauty Destroyers Women Contend With.

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

(Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner.)

IT is unfortunate for the great and good cause of equal franchise that women are growing into ungraceful and unhygienic habits in the world we call civilized.

Smoking women are everywhere evident; and the habit once indulged in occasionally by the few daring ones is now indulged openly and almost constantly in European lands; and, of course, American women are following suit, as is their custom toward older countries.

A middle-aged woman or an old woman smoking in a public place is a sight to make angels weep and men sigh over the memory of their mothers.

The young girls who smoke in public or anywhere else ought to make men pause and hesitate before thinking of asking these young women to perpetuate their species.

And to perpetuate the species and bring normal, healthy and moral men and women into the world is the real business of every young woman, however we may regard other occupations for her, and however wide we are trying to make her sphere of usefulness.

Field Marshal Lord Methuen has now come to the front in an open denunciation of the smoking woman.

He declares woman has not man's "sense of proportion" and does not know when to stop. But he also believes the smoking habit, especially the cigarette habit, a serious detriment to men. Lord Methuen says:

Men's Nerves Stand Strain of Nicotine Better Than Woman's

"A man is constitutionally stronger than a woman, and his nerves will stand the strain of nicotine much better than hers will.

"Then, again, the throat, cheat and lungs, which are some of the principal organs affected by excessive cigarette smoking, are more susceptible in the female sex, and consequently irritation is set up the more quickly.

"But I think it is in the eyes which are most affected by the habit. After excessive indulgence, these organs generally become weak-looking and uncertain, and often assume a watery appearance.

"Another symptom of the habitual cigarette smoker is a nasty, troublesome cough, particularly in the morning, which arises from the irritation caused by the nicotine to the throat and chest. This is more often the case with the person who inhales the smoke—a habit which, I am sorry to say, is pretty general among cigarette smokers.

"I think you will agree that these ailments do not add to the attractiveness or the charm of the gentle sex, but then, in addition, you have to consider the deleterious effect cigarette smoking has upon the heart and nerves.

"The cigarette habit among ladies is deplored by all doctors, but particularly in regard to the younger members of the sex.

"At middle-age the effects are not so much pronounced, or, perhaps, not so noticeable, but in the case of a young girl her development is undoubtedly impeded, and this must have a detrimental effect upon the future of the race."

It is gratifying to lovers of the human race to have a man of brain and position take this stand toward the smoking habit, especially an Englishman, for it is English women of prominence who have made the unwholesome custom fashionable.

There are a million more women than men in England, and perhaps the habit first originated in woman's desire for man's society, and in her loneliness she found even the smell of his cigar smoke solace.

There was once a romantic girl living in a retired country place who asked her lover to smoke into a bottle that she might let the smoke escape some lonely evening during his absence and imagine him present.

Present Smoking Craze Is One to Be Greatly Deplored

However the present smoking craze originated it is most unfortunate. It is bad enough for posterity to have the vices of the fathers to combat, but what hope can the world have of a higher humanity when both parents have vitiated their blood and destroyed their nervous systems by nicotine?

A young woman on one of the large ocean liners was seen always with a cigarette between her lips. She remarked to some fellow passengers that she had taken the cure once at a sanitarium, but that the habit was too strong to overcome. Many women who are subject to nervous breakdowns and who are sent to "rest cures" and sanitariums to recover from "over work" or "over pleasuring" are really suffering from nicotine poisoning, were the truth known.

It seems appalling that such a condition of society should exist; appalling that smoking among women has attained such a hold upon the community, that men like Lord Methuen are alarmed.

But it is well that one such man has raised his voice in protest. The craze for smoking started with the English women, and it is befitting that Englishmen should make some effort at mitigating the evil.

For evil it is, and one which menaces the generations to come.

If woman is to have the franchise, and use it to better the world, let her not emulate the vices of men to prove her worth and ability.

Women Valuing Beauty Should Give Up Smoking

And let her value her beauty and health and attractiveness enough to enable her to give up the disgusting cigarette habit.

Let us hope Lord Methuen is a prophet when he says:

"I do not think the time is far distant when there will be as strong a crusade against smoking to excess as there has been against drinking to excess.

"I believe it will be the doctors who will lead the crusade against excessive smoking.

"They will tell a person plainly that it is ruination to his nerves to smoke cigarettes, as some people do, from the age of ten years onward."

The New Haven Robbery and the Way to Stop It

State of Massachusetts to take over the Boston & Maine Railroad and conduct that corporation under State ownership.

"This is the way to reach the root of this monopolistic evil, and there is no other way worthy of the attention of the earnest and intelligent citizens of this country.

"The control of public service monopoly is a question which must be met and solved in every State of the Union, and by the United States Government as well, when such monopolies are engaged in interstate traffic.

"Let New England exercise its rights, not only of public control, but of public ownership, and let it teach selfish and inconsiderate monopolists everywhere that the people of this country are ready and able to take over public service corporations and operate them in the public interest whenever the public interest is systematically disregarded and DEFIED!"
